

U. S. SHIPS HASTEN TO ASSISTANCE OF THE BRITISH DIRIGIBLE OFF COAST

GREAT R-34 FIGHTING ITS WAY ACROSS NOVA SCOTIA AGAINST HEAVY HEAD WIND

Reports Fuel Supply Running Low as Canada Coast is Neared.

Roosevelt Field, Mineola, Expects Arrival of Aerial Visitors Sunday.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 5.—The R-34 was still proceeding under her own power at 2.15 p. m., according to a wireless message received here. She passed over Maitland, Hants County, N. S., at 2.20 o'clock, headed for the basin of Minas, according to telephone advice. Maitland is 58 miles northwest of Halifax at the head of the basin of Minas, which is a tributary to the Bay of Fundy.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Two American destroyers were ordered today to proceed toward the Bay of Fundy, to lend any required assistance to the British dirigible R-34, which reported she was fighting a headwind over Nova Scotia with her fuel supply getting low.

The destroyers will put out from Boston with orders to establish radio communication with the dirigible as quickly as possible, and also to keep in touch with the Otter Cliffs, Me., wireless station.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 5.—A wireless message received by admiralty officials here at 12.30 o'clock stated that the R-34 was at the south end of the Bay of Fundy, between Yarmouth and the Grand Manan.

BOSTON, Mass., July 5.—Reports from the R-34 this morning had placed her in a fog over Nova Scotia between Halifax and Canso.

She had been in the air approximately 36 hours when the message asking for a tow by an American destroyer was received, having taken the air from East Fortune, Scotland, at 9:48 p. m., (eastern time) Tuesday.

She had expected to complete the flight to Long Island in much less time but her progress was slow because of fog and headwinds.

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 5.—The R-34 will arrive at Roosevelt field Sunday morning, according to a wireless message from Major Scott, her commander, received today by Lieutenant-Colonel Lucas, who represents the British admiralty in making arrangements for her reception. According to the information received by Lieutenant-Colonel Lucas two destroyers have been sent at full

Officers Who Are Directing the R-34's Flight to America

WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN WILL FACE TRIAL BEFORE FIVE JUDGES IN LONDON

AMERONGEN, July 5.—William Hohenzollern, former emperor of Germany has decided to stay here at least until the end of the summer and perhaps throughout the autumn, owing to the difficulty which has been encountered in finding a suitable dwelling elsewhere. The health of both the former emperor and empress remains very good, despite the worries of the last few weeks.

The miserable weather has somewhat hindered the former monarch's log-sawing operations, but whatever the nature of the weather, Count Hohenzollern passes two or three hours daily at his favorite occupation, taking shelter with his assistants beneath a garden shed when the down-pour of rain is most severe. He expects to complete the sawing of his six thousandth tree this week. No visitors are now at the castle, except Dr. Krieger, the former emperor's one time official doctor who is occupied in liquidating Count Hohenzollern's property in Germany.

LONDON, July 5.—John Andrew Hamilton, Lord Sumner, will preside over the five judges representing the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan at the trial of the former German emperor, according to the Evening News.

Sir Gordon Hewart, solicitor general of Great Britain, will lead for the prosecution. William Hohenzollern, it is said, will be defended by German counsel, assisted by British lawyers if he wishes them.

The only enterprise of the report by Premier Lloyd George on the work of the peace conference to the house of commons yesterday was the news that the former German emperor would be tried in London.

What About Holland? The decision to bring the former emperor to London, with other prominent accused persons, has been a well kept secret, and it is understood that Mr. Lloyd George was responsible for the proposal. Holland, however has yet to be reckoned with it is reported.

Great state trials in England, of which there have been none for many years, have been held in Westminster hall, but it is not believed that William Hohenzollern will be given that honor. The procedure for his trial will be laid down by a commission which will be appointed by a committee which the allies will soon set up to execute the provisions of the peace treaty.

Five judges will be chosen by the British, American, French, Italian, and Japanese governments and it is expected they will constitute the court. In that event, the Earl of Reading, lord chief justice, will sit for Great Britain and Edward Douglass White, chief justice of the Supreme court of the United States, is regarded as the logical choice of the American government.

The trial is looked for this autumn, if it occurs, and steps for the emperor's extradition are expected to be taken soon, if not already begun.

Opinion in Holland Dutch newspapers have discussed Count Hohenzollern's extradition ever since he took refuge in Holland, and the general sentiment appears to be that it would be a humiliation for Holland to surrender the former monarch at the demand of the powers. This demand would be untenable under the law, since the emperor's case does not come under extradition treaties and the charge of a "supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties" is not covered by existing laws.

The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant, in an article which is reputed to have been inspired, recently said that the Dutch government might be prepared to make the necessary changes in its constitutional laws on being given certain guarantees as to the constitution of the court and the charter of the trial. The guarantees specified by the newspaper were that impartial judges who would not be of accusing nationalities would preside and that the former emperor might be given the right to produce all available evidence in his defense.

Weather Next Week

WASHINGTON July 5.—Weather predictions for the week beginning Monday are:

North and middle Atlantic states, south Atlantic and east Gulf states, west Gulf states, Ohio valley and Tennessee, region of Great Lakes, upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys, Rocky Mountain and Plateau regions, temperature near the normal with occasional local showers and thunderstorms.

Tributes—One By Baker—To Dr. Anna Shaw

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Alice Paul, chairman of the national woman's party, in a statement regretting the death of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, said:

"All women must always honor Dr. Shaw and the devotion and service which she gave to the cause of their liberty. Those who have striven for the things which she labored to achieve deeply that she should have died before their full accomplishment."

Statement by Secretary Baker "The news of the death of Dr. Anna Shaw will be heavy tidings to the great company of men and women who have been associated with her in her public work. To the younger generation she was a great historic figure coming down out of the past with the traditions and inspiration of the pioneers. She gave herself to every movement for a larger liberty and finer freedom in America and with it all preserved the constructive and balanced judgment of a statesman. She was a great citizen and a great patriot."

GLORIOUS FOURTH IS CELEBRATED AT COBLENZ BY ROAR OF NATIONAL SALUTE OF FORTY-EIGHT GUNS

COBLENZ, July 5.—A salute of 48 guns—one for each state in the Union—flashed out over Coblenz at noon Friday from the ancient walls of the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, echoing up and down the Rhine and Moselle valleys as the first part of the army's program in celebrating the Fourth of July in Germany.

This was the first time that American artillery has barked from the famous fortress which tops the four hundred foot rock promontory of the east bank of the Rhine opposite the point where the Moselle joins Germany's most famous river. The salute was fired from 75's of the 17th field artillery and the roar of the same guns was heard before by Germans who opposed the second division at St. Michel, in the Champagne and in the battle of the Argonne. The salvo today however, did not disturb the Germans as the army's plans were well advertised in the newspapers.

The Fourth was celebrated throughout the American occupied area, all duty being suspended except what was absolutely necessary

HINDENBURG AVERS HE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR HUN ARMY AFTER AUG. 1916

MOBS UNDER RED FLAG ARE RAIDING STORES IN FLORENCE

FLORENCE Italy July 5.—Cannibals tried upon crowds here. Disorders are increasing and the ransacking of shops is widespread.

Strengthened by rowdies the crowd has abandoned itself to the general sacking of all shops without distinction, destroying what it is unable to carry away. One entire street is flooded with petrololium, gasoline, wine, beer and olive oil.

Wherever the chamber of labor is able to exercise authority, goods are being transported to special warehouses under the red flag, even tram cars being pressed into this service. Large quantities of supplies are being turned over to the municipality in the Piazza Signoria, the chief square of the city. Money taken from shops also is being placed in the care of the municipality or the chamber of labor. Thousands of boxes of matches are being distributed free to the crowds.

President's Stay In New York Will Be Short

WASHINGTON, July 5.—President Wilson has approved the program for his reception at New York Tuesday. He will land at Hoboken at 2.30 o'clock, cross on the ferry to Manhattan and proceed by automobile to Carnegie Hall, where formal welcoming ceremonies will be held.

The president plans to make a brief address in reply to the welcome by Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan, but the understanding at the White House is that he will not touch on the peace treaty and the league of nations. After the exercises at Carnegie Hall he will start for Washington on a special train, arriving late Tuesday night.

Wires President Ebert to Inform Allies of This Declaration.

Wife of Hungarian Soviet Leader Denied Refuge By the Swiss Government

LONDON, July 5.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, former chief of the German staff declares that he is responsible for acts of German main headquarters since August 1916 and also the proclamations of former Emperor William, concerning the waging of warfare. He asks President Ebert of Germany to inform the allies to this effect, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company.

The field marshal arrived in Hanover on Friday, the dispatch states and telegraphed the following message to President Ebert:

"The signing of the peace treaty gives me occasion for declaring that I am responsible for the decisions and acts of main headquarters since August 29, 1916, and also that all proclamations and orders of my majesty, the emperor and king, concerning the waging of warfare were issued upon my advice and upon my responsibility. I beg you therefore to inform the German people and the allied governments of this declaration."

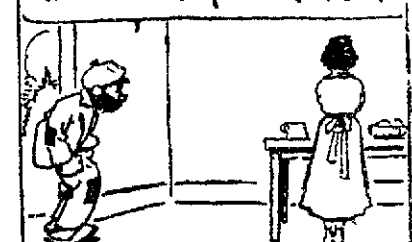

The declaration by Field Marshal Von Hindenburg that he was responsible for acts committed by the Germans and for proclamations of the former emperor is the second to be made by a German leader since it was officially announced that the allies purposed to place on trial political and military leaders of Germany for causing the war and for violations of the rules of warfare. The other leader, who assumed responsibility for the acts of former Emperor William was Dr. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, former German chancellor, who held office at the beginning of the war.

GENEVA, July 5.—Madame Bella Kun, wife of the foreign minister of the Hungarian soviet government, arrived at the Swiss frontier yesterday but was not allowed to cross by the authorities who applied the new law controlling the entry of aliens.

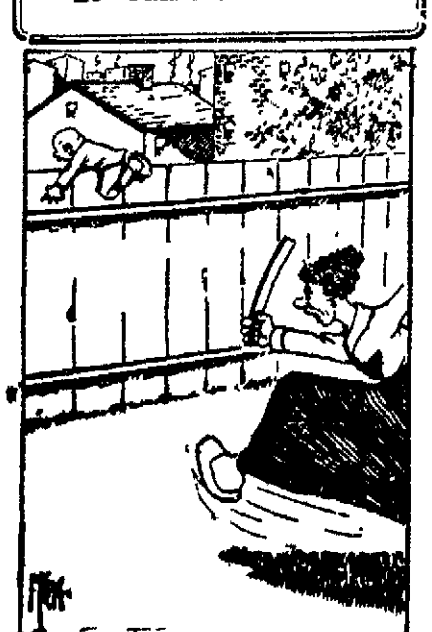

The wife of the Hungarian Bolshevik dictator is said to have had a large sum of money in her possession with which it is supposed that she intended to engage in Bolshevik propaganda. She also had several large trunks and many servants with her.

M. E. Centenary Draws Crowd of 110,000, 4th

COLUMBUS, July 5.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels, a minute man of the Methodist Church South, will be the principal speaker at the Minute Men's Day celebration at the Methodist centenary exposition here today. He is scheduled to deliver two addresses this afternoon. Shortly after noon he will deliver an address to the minute men and later in the day the secretary of the navy is to speak before the general audience.

Yesterday's attendance at the centenary, according to officials, exceeded 110,000. It was by far the largest number of persons who ever visited the Ohio State fair grounds in one day.

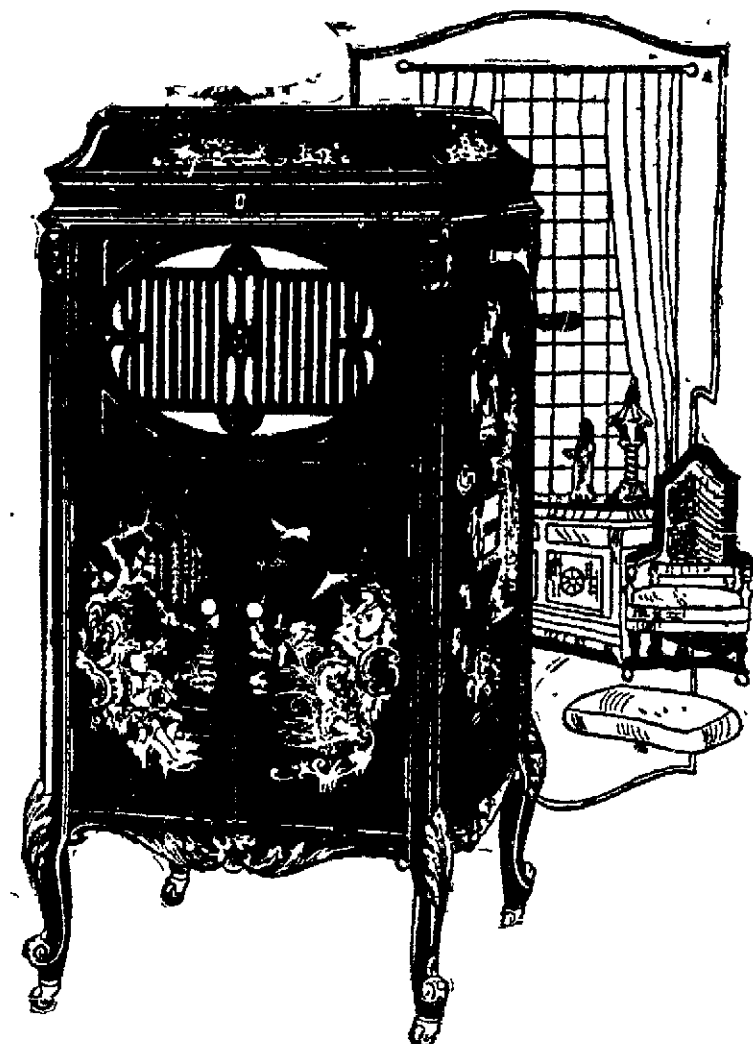

DISCHARGES ARE DELAYED CHILMCOCK, O., July 5.—The Three Hundred and Eighth Engineers arrived at Camp Sherman today, but the men will not be discharged until Saturday. All except the Ohio personnel of the regiment were sent directly to their homes from Camp Jackson, S. C. There are 1,387 Ohio men in the organization, approximately 100 of them being from Cincinnati.

FEDERAL FUGITIVE LISTED TO BE SHOT ON SIGHT BY OFFICER

Aided Germans to Escape
From Prison, Then Deserted When Restored

IS HIDING IN CANADA

Breaks Away After Being
Captured at Jackson
Center, O.

The Janesville, Wis. Daily Press has the following in regard to the escape of Lawrence E. Babcock, who described the army at Jefferson barracks, Mo., and was arrested at Jackson Center on the evening of June 5, saving out of jail that night and stealing Dr. McCormick's automobile the night of the 7th.

"Lawrence Babcock whose home is at Milton is listed to be shot on sight by United States army officers, according to a report received at Milton."

Babcock is accused of letting German prisoners get away from Leavenworth, of deserting the army and saving out of jail when arrested for federal punishment. Young Babcock enlisted at Battle Creek two years ago in ambulance service and later was in the medical corps. Recently he was at home as he said "on a furlough" but his father has since learned that the government was then searching for him.

His arrest at Jackson Center, Ohio Word has been received from Hudson, the boy who left Jackson Center with Babcock. It appears that he was given the slip by Babcock at Minneapolis Min. and being thrown on his own resources, obtained employment on a farm near there. An investigation has been started as to the truth of this report and it found correct Hudson at least will no doubt be arrested and will pay the penalty for his share in taking the automobile.

Meanwhile, Babcock is still at large probably by this time in Canada. However, if he is of this much importance to the federal officers he will eventually get all that is coming to him.

STEAKS STILL HIGH AS CATTLE DROPS

Western Senators Say
Packers and Retailers
Extort Huge Harvest

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Price of cattle on the hoof has fallen 1 to 2 per cent in the last three months, yet there has been no corresponding decrease in the price of steaks and beef to the consumer, according to western senators who have been going into the serious situation confronting the western cattle feeders.

They have asked the department of agriculture to get definite figures to show if possible, who is getting the benefit of the slump in cattle prices, for certainly the consumer is not.

"The best information we can get at this time," said Senator Capper of Kansas today "is that retailers are taking as big a share in this extra profit as the packers. No one absolves the packers from blame in the matter at all for they have not made a decrease in beef prices proportionate to the drop in cattle prices. But the figures that are coming in on retail prices instead of passing it on to the consumer."

CONNOR DIED FROM DISEASE NOT BLOWS

VAN WERT, July 5.—Dr. C. R. Keyser, County Coroner, has filed an extended report embodying the developments in the post mortem examination on the body of Ross Connor, of Harrison township, along with a finding upon the inquest. Stripped of its verbiage, the finding of Coroner Keyser is that Ross Connor died of kidney disease. Covering the cause of death the finding is as follows: "The anatomic lesions found on post mortem existed prior to May 1, 1919. There was absence of an recent inflammatory process. The ultimate cause of death was due to renal insufficiency the result of cystic degeneration of both kidneys, which had destroyed most of the functioning part of the kidney structure."

The fixing of the date of May 1, 1919, in the official finding is of magnitude, because the encounter between the late Ross Connor and Orville Stewart occurred in the early part of May, that being the date fixed in the affidavit upon which Stewart was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

REVENUE OFFICES IN OHIO MAY NOT BE REORGANIZED

Indications are No Changes
Will Be Made in This State

NEW PLAN FOR INDIA

Berl Williams in Charge of Drafting Plan of Reorganization

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—Light is thrown on the proposed internal revenue reorganization, as it applies to Ohio, in a letter which Arthur P. Black, Senator Pomerene's secretary has just sent to Stephen W. McGrath, deputy collector in charge of the Cincinnati revenue office.

Mr. Black had a long talk with Berl Williams, superintendent of internal revenue collectors, who has had charge of drafting the plan of reorganization that is proposed for the international revenue service of the country. As a result of this conference Mr. Black wrote to Mr. McGrath as follows:

OHIO NOT DISTURBED
"Mr. Williams told me that so far as Ohio is concerned no definite program has been agreed upon, consequently nothing has been done. I gather from what he said that it is not likely that anything will be done in Ohio for some time. However, this must not be taken too literally."

"There are ten states in the Union which do not have collectors. It is the aim of Commissioner Roper to place one collector in each of these states, and in order to do that he is taking a collection district out of some other state. Ohio will not be affected by this change."

"Furthermore, the work of the collectors and the work of the agents in a good man instance overlap, and you do not need to be told that this means more or less friction between the agents and the collectors."

ROPER'S PLAN OUTLINED.
"Generally speaking, the plan Commissioner Roper wishes to make a decent share the different collection districts in the several states and a number of places are scattered throughout the states where representatives of the revenue agent and the revenue agents and the collectors will have their offices open throughout the year. It is believed this will work out not only to the advantage of the government but will be a great boon to taxpayers who find it necessary to consult frequently with reference to making up their tax returns and securing information relative to the payment of taxes. Under this arrangement the collection district proper will serve as a clearing house for the department here in Washington.

That Prize Fight

NOW THAT IT IS ALL OVER, it is to be hoped that the laws of Ohio will be so changed that a repetition of the Toledo prize fight will not be possible. There is no doubt that boxing is a healthful sport and boxing matches, conducted under organized clubs, in which the best people of a community are interested, will not be molested, but instead, will be encouraged.

But the Toledo fight was a cold-blooded money-getting proposition and nothing else. Barred out of almost every state in the Union, the pugilists were allowed to fight in Ohio under a state law which definitely permitted the contest.

Governor Cox was blamed by people of the state who were opposed to the holding of such a notorious event in Ohio, but the Governor was powerless under the law to prevent the affair.

The Republican legislature will re-convene in the fall and as it has accomplished nothing in the six months it dawdled away its time in Columbus perhaps it can get something done towards preventing the commercializing, and the rapid killing, of a sport that otherwise will flourish as long as it has behind it the substantial men of each community.

Misrepresentation

SENATOR McCUMBER, a republican who is vigorously opposed to the impudent Knox resolution, said in the course of an address to the senate on that measure that with one exception he knew of no important public document that had been the subject of so much misrepresentation by its opponents as the league of nations covenant. In this connection we commend the following editorial from the independent and practical-minded Saturday Evening Post:

"The official text of the constitution of the league of nations has been published by every important newspaper in the United States. Get that official text and read it for yourself, with plain horse sense.

"You will then see what ground there is for these senatorial boogies. It does not destroy the sovereignty of the United States. It does not and cannot infringe the constitution of the United States, for that cannot be changed in any respect except in the manner which itself prescribes. It does not put our army and navy at the arbitrary disposal of anybody. It does not in the least restrict our freedom to protect ourselves from attack by Mexico or any other state. It does not leave us helpless to determine our own immigration policy.

"Any possible federation of nations must be essentially like a partnership among individuals. If each prospective partner is going to assume, to begin with, that the other prospective partners are seeking a partnership in order to take every possible advantage of him and injure him at every opportunity the partnership will never be formed, for legal ingenuity cannot frame a compact under which a set of rogues, working together, will not find a chance to gouge each other. But if each prospective partner takes the common-sense view, that, as the partnership is for the mutual benefit of all concerned, every partner will wish to keep on good terms with the other partners and will act toward them with a reasonable degree of honesty and good faith, then a legal document, satisfactory to all of them, can be drawn.

"If the United States is going to assume that it can trust nothing at all to the good faith and common honesty of any of its prospective partners in the league, or to their desire for friendly relations with us, then any league is out of the question. If we can take no chance on international friendship we must turn vigorously to competitive armaments, with a million men and equipment ready for instant call and a billion a year for navy. That is the choice before us.

"It is the most important question before the country and the world. It will be extensively debated. Picking flaws, and magnifying them, is to be expected—especially as the discussion has a strongly partisan hue. Keep the official texts and read them over for yourself, with plain horse sense, not of course forgetting that the sincerity of the signatory powers is the essence of the contract."

Boys Have Not Changed

IT IS THE HABIT of elderly people to shake their heads and to wonder what is going to become of the present generation of boys. Especially is this likely to be the case as some young fellow dashes down the street in a high-powered automobile, or is seen spending money in princely fashion. But the truth is, boys have not changed. They are as good now as ever they were—and no worse than they used to be.

But conditions have changed. The young fellow who now spends money is doing exactly what his father did, except that whereas his father could only spend a nickel the youngster can spend a dollar or a hundred. Further, whereas the father had to earn his own nickel, the youngster is usually spending the money his father has given him, but that is not the invariable rule. Many of these boys seen spending money have earned it. But father remembers that he earned only a few dollars a week; he doesn't realize that he got as much as he was worth at the time. The son is earning a hundred dollars a month, or, it may be, even more, and he can afford to spend money more recklessly than his father spent it.

The boys of today are going to make splendid men. They are getting along fine. They stay out later at night; they demand better clothes; they spend more money; they drive automobiles instead of horses. But it is all a matter of changed conditions, rather than changed boyhood.

When it comes to getting the money "smatter with Toledo?"

ANGER AND LACK OF CONTROL CAUSES OF SOME VOICE LOSSES

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (John Hopkins University)

Hoursness and hushiness of the voice, a coarse, raspy raucous vocal twang exasperate the auditor sorely. A lost voice, however, is worse—at least for gossiping persons. Loss of voice, called aphonia by highbrow medical technicians, may be intimately associated with an infectious laryngitis, tumors of the wind-pipe, enlarged glands in the throat, paralysis or paralysis of the vocal cords emotional instability formerly known as "hysterics" or "nervousness."

Emotional aphonia is most common. It is guilty nine times in ten as the cause of events usually told. Here is an example:
A physically well woman, aged 37, five feet six inches in height, married, with two children, quarreled with her husband almost every night because he seldom remained home. One night she nagged and yelled at him until she was hoarse. Nature then stepped in to force a vocal rest and 48 hours later she could not talk even in a whisper.

An Unusual Case
Coincidentally she had a "cold," but no sore throat. The "cold" was gone after a week and all intents and purposes she was well, yet her voice remained among "those absent."

Her husband sent her to the seashore for a week, thence to a hospital for three weeks' rest in bed. She was again transferred to another hospital.

The wife was voiceless nearly six months, when a laryngist determined to put her under ether to examine her windpipe for tumors, congestions or something to account for the trouble.

Not a thing was discovered to account for the aphonia. Now comes the apparent miracle. When the patient came out of the anesthetic and was restored to her senses she began to read and tell tales out of school.

The Real Cause
This is a plain tale from many a doctor's experience. Hysterical loss of voice means that some emotional strain, shock or explosion has depressed the physical and psychical elements which control the behavior of the vocal muscles below the level of mental activity. The aphonia of this is a form of aphonia, which may endure until the source of the anger, fear, fright, laughter, joy or other feeling to again reminded or shocked back into consciousness.

Sore throats, laryngitis, bronchitis, growths, tumors, tuberculosis, scars from acids or bases, paralysis, sarcoma and grown glands can be distinguished from emotional loss of voice by chemical, physical, electrical, surgical and other tests.

The X-ray, Wasserman test, presence of fevers or congestions inform the doctor who diagnoses very quickly.

The pointed moral which adorns this lesson is a proverb: Let not thy anger rise as a torrent to smite thee as a tidal wave and engulf thee instead of the supposed tormentor at whom you rail and rave. Calmness conserves the voice as well as sweetens its influence.

Answers to Health Questions.

Miss E. B. Q.—Kindly advise me what to do for gray hair.

Henna leaves..... 1 ounce
Boiling water..... 1 quart
Place the henna leaves in the boiling water and let it stand all night in the morning, strain and heat to the boiling point. Add two ounces of henna powder and stir and strain. Brush this into the clean hair. This is harmless but why change something that may be very beautiful?

M. L. G. Q.—Kindly advise me what to do for a pain in the left side of my stomach.

A.—Only a thorough examination internal and external, with various instruments of precision, can disclose the precise cause. It may be muscular strain, rupture, some internal infection in the tubes or several other things.

KATHERINE D. Q.—Kindly advise me what to do for nervousness.

A.—The treatment is diversion, attention transferred and directed into new channels, new friends, new faces, new furniture, new scenes, new habits, changed sleeping rooms, new nations, everything radically altered and wholly different will in time relieve almost all such conditions.

I ENJOY YOUR ARTICLES. Q.—Kindly tell me what to do for gray hair.

A.—It is not often that the natural color of the hair returns after the hair pigments or melanin are gone. A darker hue may be given the hair by the use of henna. In the form of crayon or of grease paint or home-made with vasoline this is very good. Different shades of red, brown, blonde and chestnut may be obtained by the use of henna tea in which powdered indigo has been added.

"Bone Dry Lid" Clamped Down In Old Chicago

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago's "bone dry lid" was severely clamped down today after yesterday's brief respite when about half of the city's six thousand saloons sold 2-3-1 per cent beer and light wines.

Today about one thousand saloons were open, but only soft drinks were sold. The police have been ordered rigidly to enforce the state search and seizure law which prohibits the sale of beverages containing more than one half of one per cent of alcohol.

ONE OHIO MAN REFUSED OFFICE

General B. F. Potts of Carroll county Ohio, deserves special mention in the history of Ohio, because in spite of the traditional love of appointment to office and promotion in it that Ohio men are said to have, he twice declined such favors—one being a military office and the other a civil one. In neither case, however did his refusal keep him permanently out of the benefit of preferment, and he ultimately landed as high, or higher than the positions turned down.

General Potts entered the military service as a captain in the 32nd O. V. I., at the opening of the civil war, but had been transferred to an artillery unit and in the fall of 1862 was holding that rank when an appointment came to him making him a Lieutenant colonel in another regiment. At the time his command was under fire and in hard straits in Virginia and he refused to leave it while it was at grips with the enemy. He remained with it and was captured at Harper's Ferry on September 15. Before long he was exchanged and had a long and distinguished military service thereafter, rising to the rank of brigadier-general.

After the war he was elected to the state senate, served in the 58th and 59th legislatures. In his second term he was appointed by General Grant, then president, to be governor of the territory of Montana, but refused it because an anti-slavery measure was to be voted on and the loss of his vote would cause it to be defeated. Later, however he was offered the same post and accepted it, resigning his seat in the senate, to which vacancy Jared Dunbar was elected.

In spite of the fact that he came out of the war a rabid anti-slavery man he had stumped the state as a young man but 20 years old, for James Buchanan in 1856. He was a delegate in both the Charleston and Baltimore conventions of the Democratic party in 1860, voting from the first to last in both of them for Stephen A. Douglass.

OUR BED-TIME STORY FOR TINY TIMES-DEMOCRAT FOLKS

Jack heard many an interesting story from the soldiers at Verdun, but the one that thrilled him most was told by a real young boy.

He couldn't have been much more than out of school, Jack thought, for he was still just a lad. And this is the story that he told, as near as I can recall it.

The French and German armies had been battling for days in that neighborhood. The air was just full of giant shells. Airplanes buzzed overhead. Once in a while every one was made deathly sick by smelling some of the poisonous gases used in the fighting. Dispatch riders on motorcycle flashed back and forth over the road delivering messages to different parts of the French army.

A dispatch rider, you know, has the most dangerous job of anyone. He must carry order to any part of the battlefield, no matter how terrible the fighting may be. The enemy tries hard to shoot him, so that word he is taking will fail to reach the officers and perhaps fall into the hands of the enemy.

De Bois, for that was the boy's name, had envied the message carriers, even though their work was dangerous. He could ride a motorcycle himself, and had tried to enlist, but the officers had told him that he was too young.

Two or three times during the day De Bois had helped some of the soldiers when they had broken down near his house on their way to and from the front line. Once he had helped bandage the wounds of one of the men.

The wounded rider told him how he had been carrying orders for two days and a night from the headquarters to the most important part of the line without taking time to rest or eat, let alone sleep. He could have had relief, but knew that a new rider would have a hard time finding the road and locating the offices, so stuck to his work.

Late in the day De Bois saw him come again, bound from headquarters to the front. As he neared the house, De Bois saw his machine wobble and fall. When the French rider had reached the side of the fallen rider he found that the soldier had been wounded again, this time through the chest, and that he had become unconscious while trying to continue his work.

De Bois brought him some water and finally revived him. The rider opened his eyes and when he saw who it was, managed to say, "You must take these orders to General Jule. Keep this road for five miles, turn to your left at the cross road and on through the heavy timber. You will find him on the side of the hill. You must not fail."

Then the rider collapsed again. De Bois carried the soldier into his house, laid him on the bed, made him as comfortable as he could and then ran out to the machine.

It took him but a minute or two to examine the engine and find out that it had been unhurt by the fall. He started the motor running and leaped astride the motorcycle.

I will tell you tomorrow about his eventful ride.

DUTCH COLONIAL ARTISTIC HOME

Combines Graceful Lines With Economy in Space.

Interior Arrangement is Strong Feature of the Plans—Rooms Are Large and Conform to Modern Ideas.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 137 Franklin Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose three-cent stamp for reply.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Dutch colonial houses are in increasing favor with home builders. The balanced elegance of the exterior, combined with the economy in space in the interior, makes this style of architecture appeal to everyone who wants a fine residence at a moderate cost. An exceptionally fine design of a Dutch colonial house with shingled siding is shown in the accompanying illustration.

The perspective shown illustrates the balance of the exterior of the house. The entrance at the side is placed exactly in the center, while on either side are duplicate sets of windows. The same effect is secured with the windows on the second floor. Porches, with the roofs supported by colonial columns, are placed at the front end and on the opposite side, and each has a canvas deck. A third deck is over the kitchen entry and pantry. Lattice work between the columns of the porches suggests the added attraction vines will make to the exterior.

It will be noticed by the floor plan that this house is rectangular in shape, 24 by 43 feet, the straight lines of the structure being broken only by the porches and the slope of the roof down to the second floor sill. While shingle construction is shown, brick or stucco may be substituted.

Half of the appeal of this house, however, is in the interior arrangement. While it is a seven room house, the rooms are large and conform to the modern ideas of arrangement. The

ter. The den is eight and one-half feet square and opens off a side porch, as well as the living room. The front porch is 20 by 10 feet, slightly narrower than the house.

The dining room is on the corner to the rear and is 14 by 11 feet 8 inches. A nook contains the china closet, while there are four windows, giving an abundance of light. The kitchen is the same size as the dining room. It will be noticed that the sink, cupboard and work table are ranged along two walls, with a window between them. The large pantry at the back contains a work table and shelves, a window being over the former, while the ice-box is located so that it can be reached from the entry. At the end of the central hall, into which each room on the first floor opens, is a lavatory and toilet.

The second floor rooms are practically duplicates of those on the first floor. The bedroom at the front is the same size as the living room, and also has a fireplace. The rear bedroom is the same size as that in front. The size of these rooms permits two beds, while glazed doors open onto the canvas decks.

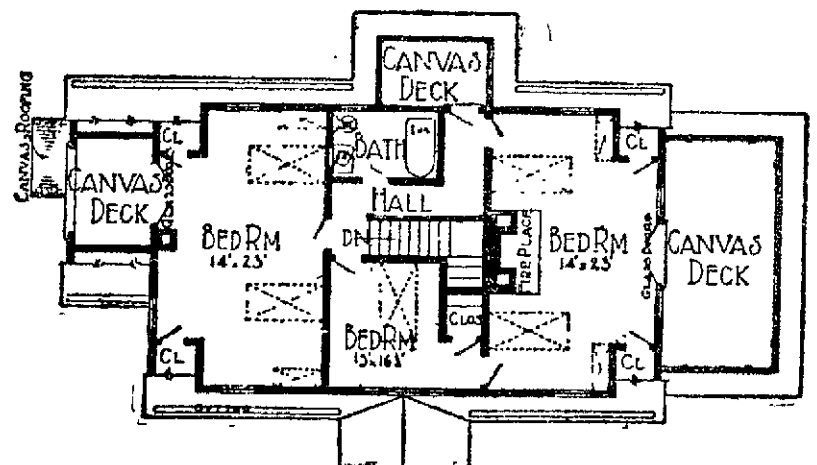

Over the reception hall is a smaller bedroom, that can be used as a sewing room, or nursery, if desired. This room is 13 by 16 feet 3 inches. At the end of the second floor hall is a third canvas deck. There are two closets in each of the large bedrooms and one in the smaller bedroom.

The basement extends under the whole of the building, the inside stairway to it leading from the central hall. The flues are located at either end of the basement, so that the heating plant and fuel storage room can be placed at whichever point it is most convenient. The other part of the basement can be devoted to storage rooms for vegetables and the other things that are not constantly in use.

This is an exceptional design for the home builder who wants an artistic, spacious and modern home that does not cost a large amount of money. It was designed by an architect of wide experience. And right here let it be said that whatever type of home the owner wants to build, he should consult an architect. The fee is not large and will be saved many times by eliminating the chances for mistakes in arrangement and materials. Costs of building differ in different localities, but by consulting the local contractor, lumber dealer or architect the prospective home owner can readily find out what a house of this type will cost.

Building a home is most popular this year. There is a shortage of houses almost everywhere, because of the restrictions that were placed on building during the war. Those who are wide entrance hall, the extensive living room with the den off it, the bright dining room and the good-sized kitchen with the pantry and entry provide just the arrangement that is desired in an up-to-date house. The two large bedrooms, one at the front and one at the rear, with canvas decks opening off them, are exceptional features.

The reception hall is 18 by 7 feet, with a large closet under the stairway. To the right is the living room, extending across the whole front of the house, and to the left is the dining room. The living room is 28 by 14 feet, with a large fireplace in the center. The den is eight and one-half feet square and opens off a side porch, as well as the living room. The front porch is 20 by 10 feet, slightly narrower than the house.

Building a home now is a good investment. There is no possibility that prices of materials and labor will be reduced to any extent for a number of years; in fact, many economists assert that this era of high prices will continue for many years.

ROBERT WEAVER.

A pretty yet simple wedding was that of last Tuesday evening, when well-known Lima young man, Robert L. Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Weaver, of West Wayne street, was united in marriage to Miss Catherine Duerkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Duerkin, of Pittsburg. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Leroy Earl, of this city, was the only relative present at the ceremony, while Mr. Weaver was attended by a very close friend, Claude Wilson.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Lima high school and of Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburg, and Mrs. Weaver is a graduate of the Homestead high school and also Margaret Morrison school at Pittsburg. Mr. Weaver is at present connected with the Toledo Railways & Light company, and is superintendent of one of their gas plants.

The happy couple have gone to housekeeping in a charming little bungalow at Kenilworth Place, Toledo.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moke, of South Main street, and Mrs. Fred Wiley and daughter, Caroline, of West North street, spent the Fourth at Tippecanoe City. The trip was made by motor.

SIMPLE WEDDING.

Although the week has not been so numerously sprinkled with weddings as in the past, the one of Thursday was a cleverly concealed surprise to their many friends. The wedding took place at the Christ Episcopal church, when Rev. Kirk B. O'Ferrall pronounced the words which united in marriage Miss Vanna Linn, daughter of Mrs. E. E. Linn, of the Adgate apartments, and Everett Jones, son of Mrs. Clara Jones, of South Ellsworth street. It was the object of the contracting parties to have the service just as sweet and simple as possible, and so it was that the bride and bridegroom with a few friends gathered at the church and were married, where the bride has long been a member. She was very pretty in her bridal robes, her gown being fashioned of daintiest net over crepe de chine, while she wore a large black hat, and a corsage of pink roses and lavender sweet peas.

The young couple left following the ceremony for a short trip on the lakes, after which they will be at home to their many friends with the bride's mother, in the Adgate apartments.

Those guests bidden to the church were: Mrs. Clara Jones and daughters, Harriet and Jessie, mother and sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. E. C. Jones and Edwin Jones; Mrs. E. E. Linn and Miss Hennie Linn, mother and sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Klumph, Colonel and Mrs. John A. Harlow, Austin Zinkan, Miss Geneva Tlemeyer and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kinn.

K. OF L. S. CLUB.

Members of the K. of L. S. club were given a rare treat when on Thursday they were invited to the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Barringer, at Russell's Point. Fourteen members of the club were able to be present and those who were unable to leave home or had other engagements are being made to understand that they missed one of the best parties for many a day. The Barringers are excellent entertainers, and the time was spent most enjoyably with boating and bathing. A new motor boat, which the Barringers have just purchased. A delicious chicken dinner was served at noon, and in the evening a fish fry was set before the guests. The guests returned to their homes in automobiles.

W. H. M. S.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society, of Trinity Church will meet on Wednesday afternoon at the country home of Mrs. Otis Lippincott, at 2:30. Mrs. Lippincott in company with Mrs. Thomas Peate, and Mrs. H. C. Bennett will be hostesses for the day. Mrs. O. G. Place has charge of the program and Mrs. Roy Evans is in charge of the social hour. Mrs. Walter D. Cole will give the devotionals, and Mrs. Foss Zartman and Mrs. Harry Thomas will superintend the lesson. A musical program will be featured.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Fisher, of Fostoria, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hoover, and daughter, Miss Aileen, of West Market Street. Friday evening Miss Hoover had a few friends at dinner at the Shawnee Country Club for her sister and brother-in-law.

Next Thursday Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hoover, and Miss Aileen Hoover, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Fisher, will leave for a motor trip through the east, touching Cedar Point, Cleveland, and Niagara Falls.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Handsomely engraved cards were received in Lima Saturday morning announcing the date as some time in August when Miss Hortense Leob of Hamilton, will become the bride of Harry Friedburgh. Miss Leob has often visited here in the past as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Holstine, of West Market street, and is very well known.

A Chance to Live

(By Zoe Beckley)

HOLOCAUST.

Fortunately the busy season was on at the factory. There was plenty of overtime work, and undertime, too. Grimly setting aside all other purposes but work, Annie rose in the chill dawn moving softly about the room for her dressing and her meager breakfast of coffee and bread, and reached the factory at seven.

With this extra hour and an evening or two a week, she added two or three dollars to her wages of twelve. Every night she was not at the shop she went to the shorthand school. Annie's whole being was soon concentrated upon just one thing—to keep awake, not to succumb to the deadly craving for sleep and rest that was forever scourging her.

When at last she fell in bed at night she feared not waking in time. Despite her tiredness she slept fitfully and woke with dulled spirit and frazzled nerves. One day the foreman found some slips of paper covered with shorthand characters on her sewing machine.

"So here is why you don't keep your mind on our work, my fine lady-aristocrat!" he sneered, flinging the papers into the waste barrel. "Shop work already, is not good enough for you, hey?"

And at the night class her teacher would say: "You'll never get your diploma if you don't concentrate on these word signs, Miss Hargan. I'm afraid your not earnest enough in your wish to master high-classwork. Your mind's in the factory."

"If I can just hold on until June Annie would tell herself, trying to shut out the discouragements that beset her. "Just till June!"

It was Saturday afternoon at the factory. There being no night school Saturday's, Annie was going to work overtime at the shop. It was hot and stuffy, and she had been working poorly. There had been newcomers taken in to fill the places of a number of Jewish girls who, led by "The Firebrand" had joined a union and were on strike for a Saturday half holiday.

Betty Fairfax's Ready Advice

Chats with the Love-lorn—

—Answers to Missives

Dear Miss Fairfax: I am in an awful muddle and don't know just how to get out of it. I was engaged to the only girl I could ever love, and we had planned to get married in a few weeks. Suddenly one night she told me that although she cared for me, she truly loved another man, who had just returned from France and that she was going to marry him. Finding that she was sincere in her statements, I let her go, for I wanted her to be happy. After her marriage I was too wretched to look at any other girl, until I met a friend of hers. This little girl was 20 years old, several years younger than I and we drifted into a brother and sister sort of friendship. Things went on gradually, until I really don't know how it happened, we became engaged. Then I realized my mistake, I feel as though I cannot marry the second girl, because I still love the first girl and always will. I have not the courage to break the engagement, for I know it will make my fiancée very unhappy. What shall I do, I am very unhappy now?"

Tom.

Ans.—Men seem to think that it is the chivalrous act of a gentleman to keep their word in a case like you described, even when they know it will cause lots of unhappiness later. Of course I do not advocate the breaking of promises in such a serious situation, yet when a man knows that he will cause a girl more unhappiness, by not being able to give to her the companionship and the love that a wife has a right to expect, he should have the courage to explain it. Then if you feel that you can never love any other girl except the first one, take care never to become involved in such a tangle again.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I would appreciate some information very much. We are having some neighbors who are very inconsiderate. The children play ball on our side walk, throwing the ball into our front yard instead of their own. In the back yard, when playing ball, they not only climb over our fence, but they trample upon our newly planted flowers. The little girl does not hesitate to throw all kinds of rubbish from their windows into our yard. Their car is always parked in front of our house, so if anyone drives up to see us, they have to leave their machine somewhere else. Cleaning their machine in front of our place is also more convenient for them it seems. Where could I report them, as they are a general nuisance to the neighborhood.

E. V. R.

Answer—By getting into communication with the police, you might be able to have the children stopped from playing ball and running through your yard. Of course, children who are cooped up in city yards, must have some fun, although it is not necessary for them to be destructive of flowers and grass. As for the other petty offenses, I do not know of any way of stopping them unless you speak to them tactfully, but firmly.

Dear Miss Fairfax—Would you be able to give me a recipe for olive oil pickles made from cucumbers? Thank you for your trouble.

Mrs. Barton.

Ans.—Slice very thin 50 medium-sized cucumbers (do not peel.) Lay in salt water with a small piece of alum for three hours, then drain, and if too salty wash in cold water. Add one and one-half ounces of white mustard seed, one ounce of ground white pepper, one ounce cayenne seed and one-half pint olive oil. Put up in jars. This will make one gallon.

The Lima Times' Fascinating Fiction Feature

TODAY—"Sir Nigel," by Arthur Conan Doyle.
MONDAY—"The Heart of Midlothian," by Sir Walter Scott.

DOYLE

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, BORN 1859.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was born on May 22, 1859, in Edinburgh. His father, Charles Doyle, was an artist of fantastic imagination. The boy went to Stonyhurst college, studied in Germany, and returned to take his degree at Edinburgh university in 1885. He signed as ship's doctor for a two years' whaling trip in the Arctic, travelled in West Africa, and finally settled as a doctor in Southsea. His restless imagination found constant expression in short stories. Sherlock Holmes made his first appearance in "A Study in Scarlet" (1887) but won his immense popularity in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes." The original of the genius-detective was Dr. Bell, of Edinburgh university. The popular hero lived again in "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes," "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Return of Sherlock Holmes."

Dr. Doyle drew abundantly from historical sources for his novels and plays. "The White Company," a stirring romance, first introduced Sir Nigel as an old man. In 1905 his youth was portrayed in the book named for him.

Conan Doyle served in a field hospital in the South African war, wrote two books in defense of the British army in the war, and was knighted in 1902. He has written a three-volume history of the great war.

Sir Conan Doyle is a large athletic man, who has never lost his enthusiasm for sports. His home in Sussex, England, is filled with trophies from many parts of the world. Tennis and cricket have kept him fit for his enormous literary undertakings.

SIR NIGEL

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE
Condensation by Alice G. Grozier

Evil times fell upon England in the year 1349, when the great plague devastated the land. It was during this period that the story of Sir Nigel takes place.

The house of Loring, like many another noble family, felt the heavy hand of misfortune; for after the Barons' war and lawsuits with Waverly Abbey the men of the church and the men of the law left nothing but the manor of Tilford for the remaining members of the family, Lady Ermyntrude and her grandson Nigel.

Nigel Loring came from a race of heroes, his grandfather having fallen at the battle of Stirling, and his father in the sea fight of Sluys. Nigel, his veins thrilling with the blood of a hundred soldiers, was filled with the desire for adventure and combat; having been trained at the desire of his grandmother in skill at arms, and courage, he became also a daring rider. At times a fierce bitterness assailed Nigel at the thought of the wrongs done by the Abbot of Waverly, whom he believed had robbed the Lorings of much of their estate.

On the first day of May, the festival of the Apostles Philip and James, consternation reigned at the Abbey. When it was found that a large pike had eaten the carp in Abbot John's fish pond, Nigel being accused of putting the pike in the pond Abbot John and the sacrist, Brother Samuel, were in consultation upon the subject, when they were rudely interrupted by a buzz of excitement among the monks in the cloister. A white-faced brother flung open the door and rushing into the room cried, "Father Abbot, alas, alas, Brother John is dead, and the subprior is dead, and the devil is loose in the five virgate field."

Now what the brother called the "devil" was a great yellow horse, held at the Abbey for the debt of his owner, Franklin Aylward; such a horse, it was said, was not to be found betwixt the Abbey and the king's stables at Windsor.

It was a sorry day that brought the horse to the Abbey, for no one there could be found who would or could ride him or conquer him; he had indeed nearly killed the brother and the subprior.

Abbot John and the monks, intent upon seeing, with their own eyes, this terrible creature, hurried down the stairs and gained the wall of the meadow, where looking over its top they beheld the magnificent horse standing fetlock deep in the meadow grass. Upon this wild scene there arrived riding his pony the young Squire Loring, small of stature, but with muscles of steel, and a soul of fire; his face, though tanned with the weather, was delicate of feature. His whole appearance made him the mark for the sight of any passerby; but at the first glance, the brown face set in its golden hair and beard, and the daring light of the quick, reckless, laughing eyes, made the one strong memory left behind.

The horse was at the moment trampling his latest victim, and Nigel, springing from his pony, was over the wall and at battle with the creature, proving himself master. Some discussion arose among the monks as to the killing of the yellow horse, or the giving him to Nigel as a punishment; the last suggestion finally won, and Nigel proceeded to further subdue the heretofore untamable creature called "Pommers."

The horse tried to unseat his rider, but Nigel held fast and as last they were over the four-foot gate and away. Then took place the most notable ride ever known to that part of the world, and the author's description regarding it is a gem worth reading, also it is the key to Nigel's whole character. A nearly forgotten ballad upon the subject has the following refrain:

"The Doe that sped on Hinde Head,
The Kestrel on the winde,
And Nigel on the Yellow Horse
Can leave the world behind."

After a long battle of wills, the horse was broken and conquered, he fell in the heather with a sobbing sigh, throwing his rider over his head stunned. The young Squire was the first to recover and kneeling by the panting, over-wrought horse, he gently passed his hand over the foam-flecked face, and the whinnying Pommers thrust his nose into the hollow of Nigel's hand.

"You are my horse, Pommers," Nigel whispered, and laid his cheek against the craning head. "I know you, Pommers, and you know me, and with the help of Saint Paul we shall teach some other folk to know us both."

The monks of Waverly Abbey held Nigel for debts and wrongs against them and he was haled before the Abbot for trial, was judged guilty and sentenced to imprisonment; but when they would have restrained him, Nigel drew his sword, which angered the Abbot, who charged his bowman to draw his bow and defend holy church and her decrees. Tragedy was imminent, when Samkin Aylward, a famous archer, came to Nigel's rescue, at once attaching himself to the young Squire's service, and afterward following him into many dangers.

Into the midst now came a man whose appearance dominated the scene. This was the famous soldier, John Chandos, with a message to Nigel Loring. Said Chandos, "He who comes to seek the shelter of your roof is your liege lord and mine, the King's high majesty, Edward of England."

While a guest at Tilford Abbey, Chandos' stories filled the mind and heart of Nigel with a stronger desire than ever for adventure, and he begged to go as Chandos' Squire, under the standards of the King, Edward of England, to which Chandos assented.

Nigel made his arrangements for leaving home; they were few and simple, for he had only his Pommers, his loyal Sam Aylward, and at last his long-wished-for suit of armor, and a small amount of gold.

There was, however, one visit must be made before leaving home, and that was to see Mary, the daughter of the old Knight of Duplin, living in the castle at Cosford. Mary of the grave eyes of brown looking bravely at the world, the one whom Nigel loved.

At the shrine of St Catherine, Nigel and Mary said their farewells, and the young squire vowed to perform three noble deeds of valor in her honor, ere he came to see his Mary again; but that no thought of her should stand twixt him and this honorable achievement.

Nigel sought constantly for some deed to perform and lesser ones came to hand frequently, but it was not until he was at Winthelsea, with Chandos, that his first great opportunity came.

It was found that the plans of the attack upon the French at Calais by the Prince's army had been stolen, and it was suspected that a cunning, daring Frenchman, called the "Red Ferret," had taken them and was then already on his way across the Channel. Nigel started in pursuit with Aylward and other followers. After a long chase and a hard fought battle, Nigel caught the Red Ferret and saved the English plans; but as his enemy was so gallant a man Nigel begged his life of the King and so saved him. He sent the Ferret to Mary at Cosford, with the message that the first deed was accomplished.

Nigel then stormed the famous castle of La Brochmore, where lived the Knight called the "Butcher of Brochmore," who was said never to let a prisoner escape alive from his castle. Here at great risk of his own life, Nigel rescued not only his man Sam Aylward and other comrades, but a young Frenchman who later, however, died, praising his rescuer. Then news of the second deed was sent to Mary at Cosford.

Nigel had followed on with John Chandos into Brittany when the third deed was found. There had been hot, furious fighting, and Nigel riding Pommers, plunged forward, unseating and taking captive one of the enemy. Having the Frenchman at his mercy, Nigel might have killed him at once, or held him for ransom, but he had made a gallant fight, and out of admiration and pity the young Squire spared his life and let him go, only to discover later that he had at his mercy none other than King John of France.

When the Prince heard the story from King John himself he exclaimed, "For my part I had rather have the honor this Squire has gathered, than all the richest ransoms of France." Whereupon the Prince with his sword touched Nigel's shoulder as he knelt before him, and said, "England has lost a brave squire and gained a gallant knight; may linger not, rise up, Sir Nigel." And a third message went to Mary. Two months later Nigel arrived at Cosford, and kissing Mary's welcoming hand he said, "St. Catherine has brought me home."

UNCLE SAM IS FORCED TO TURN DRESSMAKER BECAUSE THE WORLD WAR HAS ENDED

Uncle Sam has been forced to go into the dressmaking business. It happened this way. The Ordnance Bureau of the War Department had left on its hands 15,000,000 yards of a specially made silk intended for use as wrappings for cartridge cases. To prove that the cloth is suitable for dress goods Colonel E. E. Garrison had a dress made and fitted to his secretary. Here is the dress. The colonel says the goods should retail for two or three dollars a yard. Bids will be opened on July 10.

A merry party of young women left Lima on Thursday bound for Niagara Falls, and a trip on the lakes, they are Miss Edna Black, Miss Joe Herbst, Miss Ruth McIlvann, Miss Isabel and Miss Beatrice Goebel. They will return by way of Cedar Point, and Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Broderick and son, Alfred, of Muncie, Ind., who have been visiting here for the past two weeks with Mrs. Broderick's sister, Miss Nora Sullivan of North Elizabeth street, will return on Sunday to their home. The trip will be made by motor.

Miss Margaret Brown has returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Brown of East McKibben street, after spending the past week in Toledo as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Mahon.

Miss Grace Shone and Miss Eva Bowers bookkeepers at the S. O. Blatner company, left for Toledo, Thursday evening where they spent the Fourth with Miss Bowers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowers, formerly of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wynn, of Chicago, are spending the remainder of the week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wynn, of West Market street.

Let Electricity do your work

MEN! The best way to "keep your home fires burning" in the summertime is to put them out. Keep the Wife contented and healthy, keep the home comfortable and cheerful the electric way—the modern way, —the economical and efficient way.

Why ask the wife or the "help" to sap their vitality over hot stoves, boilers and irons when an electric iron, washing machine, toaster or percolator will do the work quicker, cheaper, better and more comfortably.

Why impose drudgery when a practical vacuum cleaner will promote ease and cleanliness? Why not give the entire family the benefit of cool rooms and restful slumber by installing an electric fan?

There's no good reason why you shouldn't.

Your electrical dealer can supply these necessities.

WORLD WAR FOUGHT WHILE SHE WAS IN SIBERIA MAKING STUDY OF THE ABORIGINES

Miss M. A. Czapliska, leader of the Siberian Anthropological Expedition sent out under the patronage of the University of Oxford and the University of Pennsylvania, was surprised to learn upon her recent return to civilization that there had been a world war. Miss Czapliska, who is a lecturer on anthropology at Oxford, has written authoritative works on the aborigines of Siberia's Arctic wildernesses.

on Saturday noon, when she entertained with one o'clock luncheon (complimenting her house guest, Mrs. George Saunders, of Sterling, Illinois). The party was given at the Lima Club, in the parlor room, and was as pretty as well as an informal affair. Pink roses, were combined artistically with the purple sweet peas making a charming color scheme. Place cards were in lavender and pink, while put baskets were of the same dainty shades.

Covers were laid for Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Fedderman, and her sister, Mrs. John Lang of Buffalo, Mrs. George Plate, Mrs. J. H. Allgire, Mrs. H. L. Breckinridge, Mrs. J. T. Kaufman, Mrs. Long, of Los Angeles, Miss Rowen Kahle and Mrs. Kahle.

Miss Charlotte Baer, of the local Y. W. C. A. Club Center is chairing a party of twenty young women at Russell's Point this week.

Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, of West Eighth Street, has been called to De Graff, by the death of her mother.

W. H. M. S. of Grace Church will meet on Wednesday afternoon in the league room of the church at 2:30. Mrs. Elmer Barth is in charge of the program, and Mrs. Hoffman, the lesson. This is the first meeting of the new year and a large are urged to attend.

KILLED BY FIREWORKS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 5.—Harold Strausbaugh, 31, of Sharon, was killed here last night during a community fireworks exhibition when an aerial bomb, failing to explode, struck him as it descended. Milton Newfield, 8, William Wilcox, 11, and George Davis, 17, all of Youngstown were burned by inflammable material falling from aerial fireworks. Mrs. Mary Cavallera, East Youngstown, was shot in the leg by celebrators.

COSTLY CELEBRATION

Fourth of July was celebrated in the same old way by J. K. Douglas, 935 East High street, and Charles Sevie, 23, Harrison avenue, police last night stated, after the men had been arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Bonds of $10 each were placed by the men, and both were forfeited when they failed to appear in police court this morning.

What Is the Question?

Are you, as natural gas users, willing to pay for SERVICE and get it? That is, natural gas service for cooking, hot water heaters and small room heating stoves; or do you want to pay a higher price for artificial gas?

That is the question.

You are hereby notified that The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has renewed, for the period of one year, its Administrative Order No. 34 which provides that during shortage of natural gas, large consumers shall be cut off; therefore, we hereby notify you that we will furnish natural gas for the following purposes ONLY, namely cooking, hot water heaters and small room heating stoves.

See the demonstrating stoves in our office. Properly adjusted stoves mean conservation of gas. Learn how to use gas in the most efficient manner.

II---I GO AFTER THE BOCHE FLIERS

And Mistake Campbell and Chapman for Enemy Machines

ON the evening of April 13, 1918, and he told me last night to carry on. We were indeed a happy lot of pilots, for we were reading on the new Operations Board the first war flight order ever given by an all-American Squadron Commander to all-American pilots. It stated in simple terms that Captain Peterson, Lieutenant Reed Chambers and Lieutenant E. V. Rickenbacker would start on a patrol of the lines tomorrow morning at six o'clock. Our altitude was to be 15,000 feet; our patrol was to extend from Pont-a-Mousson to St. Mihiel, and we were to return at eight o'clock—a two-hour patrol. Captain Peterson was designated as leader of the flight.

Picture the map of these French towns, as every pilot in our Squadron 94 had indelibly pressed it into his memory. In flying in the vicinity of enemy territory it is quite essential that one shall know every landmark on the horizon. Every river, railroad, highway and village must be as familiar to the aviator as are the positions of first, second and third bases to the home-runner.

Toul is eighteen miles almost directly south of Pont-a-Mousson; St. Mihiel is directly west of Pont-a-Mousson about the same distance. The lines ran straight between Pont-a-Mousson and St. Mihiel, then turned almost straight north to run another eighteen miles to the edge of Verdun. Straight north of Pont-a-Mousson some twenty miles Metz is situated. And around Metz several squadrons of Hun bombing aeroplanes and fighting machines had their lairs on a hilltop from which they surveyed the lines which we were to patrol this thirteenth day of April. In short the sector from Pont-a-Mousson to St. Mihiel was fairly alive with air activity when weather conditions permitted the use of aeroplanes at all.

This was the best on which Captain Peterson, Chambers and I would find ourselves tomorrow at six. Lieutenant Douglas Campbell and Lieutenant Alan Winslow were directed in the same order to stand by on the alert at the hangar from six o'clock until ten the same morning. This alert was provided for any sudden emergency, such as an enemy bombing raid in our direction or a sudden call for help against an enemy aeroplane within our lines.

Immediately after dinner that night Reed Chambers and I retired with Captain Peterson to his room, where we talked over the coming event. The Captain gave us some card directions about the precautions we should take in case of an attack, instructed me particularly that I was to lead the flight if anything happened to him or his motor, and under these circumstances I was to continue our patrol until the time was up. Then he summoned an orderly and gave orders to call all five of us at five a.m., advising Reed and me to sleep tight and try not to dream about Fokker aeroplanes, and off we went to bed.

We knew very well what we would dream about. Try as I might, I could not get to sleep that night for hours. I thought over everything I had ever read or heard about aeroplane fighting. I imagined the enemies coming at me from every direction. I pictured to myself the various ways I would circumvent them and finally bring them tumbling down to their final crash. At last I dropped off to sleep and continued dreaming the same nightmares. Just as I was sleeping down the last of a good-sized number the orderly punched my elbow and woke me up. It was five o'clock.

A wonderful morning greeted us, and the five of us had a merry breakfast. We advised Campbell and Winslow to keep a sharp lookout above the aerodrome, for we intended to stir up the Boche, and undoubtedly there would be droves of them coming over our field for revenge.

But upon reaching the field after breakfast we found that the atmosphere was bad and the mist so heavy that the ground was completely hidden a short distance away. Captain Peterson sent Chambers and myself up to reconnoiter at 1,500 feet. Away we went. After circling the field two or three times we noticed Captain Peterson take off and climb up to join us. We continued climbing, and just about the time we had attained the frigid altitude of 15,000 feet I noticed the Captain's machine gliding back to the field.

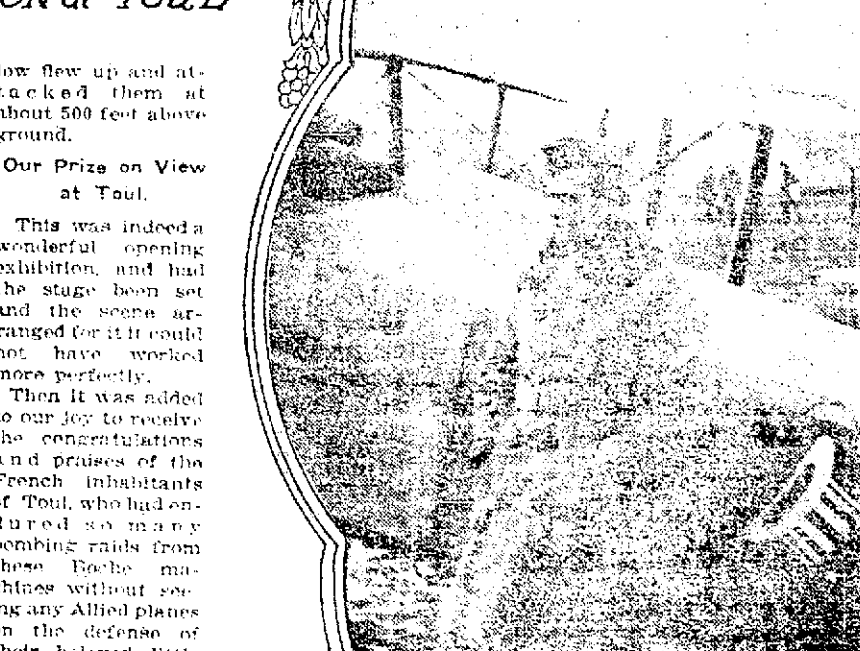

"Ah!" thought I, "motor trouble!

ed by Alan Winslow, who had shot it down in flames within three minutes after leaving the field. The second was forced down by Douglas Campbell, and it crashed in the mist before the pilot could discover his proximity to the ground. These were the first two enemy aeroplanes brought down by any American squadron and both were miraculously crashed on the very doorstep of our aerodrome on the first day we had begun operations!

Neither of the German pilots was seriously injured. Upon questioning them as to how they happened to be about in such weather they informed us that they had been summoned to go up to attack two patrolling machines that were being circled between Pont-a-Mousson and St. Mihiel. They had followed Chambers and me until they lost us in the fog. Then they tried to find their own way home to the aerodrome near Metz. They discovered our field and came down low, thinking it might be their own, when Campbell and Winslow low flew up and attacked them at about 500 feet above ground. Our Prize on View at Toul. This was indeed a wonderful opening exhibition, and had the stage been set in the sky. The scene arrived at a point when I realized that it could not have worked more perfectly. Then it was added to our joy to receive the congratulations and praises of the French inhabitants of Toul, who had endured so many bombing raids from these Boche machines without seeing any Allied planes on the defense of their beloved little city. When they learned that two of the enemy's planes had been shot down on the very first day of the arrival of the Americans their delight knew no bounds. They waved our hands, kissed us, toasted us in their best Moselle wine and yelled out "Vive la France!" "Vive les Américains!" until they were hoarse. We each took a souvenir from the German machines which were to be the first of our long series of "descendues" and the remains of the captured prizes were rolled into Toul where they remained upon exhibition in the city square until the last vestige of them disappeared. To complete our joy we learned that Reed Chambers had landed a short distance away from our drome, and that night he came in to join us. For the next few days the squadron lived upon its reputation and received the congratulations of our superior officers and the staff with much mock nonchalance. Lieutenants Campbell and Winslow were overwhelmed with and had it all planned out in my mind just how it was to be done.

It was a thick day and the clouds hung about 3,000 feet above ground. We plunged boldly into them and flew straight on. Finally we got above the clouds and began circling about in wide sweeps looking everywhere for the bold German. After thirty minutes or more of desperate searching, I decided to drop back below the clouds and see where we really were. Certainly there were no Boches in this sector after all.

In ten minutes I was below the clouds and skimming along the landscape with an eye out for landmarks. Suddenly I discovered a large city ahead which looked much like Nancy except that it was in exactly the wrong direction. I drew nearer, and couldn't believe my eyes as a closer scrutiny proved it was true. I had been trusting to my boasted sense of direction all during this flight and had not even consulted my compass. Consequently I had been turned completely around and had led Chambers in exactly the opposite direction from the spot where the German was waiting for us. We had not been within ten miles of the lines the whole morning.

In great disgust I while I was joy-riding over Pont-a-Mousson and had time to form a plot of his own leaders. I had formulated any myself. Both of us continued dead ahead at each other for twenty seconds or so, until we arrived almost within shouting distance, when I discovered that he was the blue center of a Frenchman and his machine was a Spad. We had fortunately neither of us fired a shot so far.

Suddenly I saw the French pilot zoom up over me and attempt to get on my tail. Whether joking or not, I dare not permit such a maneuver, so I as quickly darted under him and got the best position myself. The Nieuport cut out—maneuver the Spad and has a little faster climb. So the stranger soon found he had his match. But to my amazement the fellow kept circling about me, continually trying to bring his guns to bear on me. And I began wondering then whether he was some idiot who didn't know an ally when he saw one or a real Boche flying over our lines in a captured French machine. The former was evidently the correct solution, for as soon as I came to him and let him have a long look at my American white center cowards on my wings. This performance apparently satisfied his persistent friend, for he soon swerved off and went on home, leaving me to proceed on my mission. This little episode taught me another lesson. Since that day I have never taken any chances with any aeroplane in my vicinity, whether it was friend or foe. Some friends are better shots than are the usual enemies.

My real quarry had made his escape during my little tourney with the Frenchman and I found no game in the sky, though I flew a full two hours along the lines. When I returned home, however, I found myself surrounded by the whole force as soon as my Nieuport stepped rolling along the ground. They fairly overwhelmed me with congratulations for bringing down a Boche who had been seen to fall by one of our artillery batteries. As he fell in the very sector which I was patrolling they naturally credited me with the victory. It was a pity to underwrite them, but it had to be done.

The curious climax to this affair was that we never did discover who shot down that Boche machine. He was never claimed by anyone else. But I was convinced that I certainly could not have accomplished my first victory without firing a shot or even seeing my enemy.

Thus I had all the fruits of a first victory without having won it. But what was far more important to me, I had learned something more in the art of flying. I had undoubtedly saved my life by keeping out of the gun sight of a friendly machine.

The very next day I learned another lesson. I saw my first German Machine. Again it was about noon and I was on duty when an alarm came in that a Boche was flying over St. Mihiel. It was a day of low hanging clouds. I was absolutely determined that day to get my Boche despite every obstacle, back to make sure," I replied. "But I lost you in those clouds?" demanded Charley Chapman, looking at me intently as he leaned against my suspended leg. "I've been home almost half an hour!"

I thought very intently for a quarter of a second. Then I pushed Chapman away and descended from my machine. "I thought I remembered seeing a Boche back in Germany and went back to make sure," I replied. "But I lines at about 3,000 feet altitude. At that low height my machine was a back home so near to our field was the second best thing that had happened to us since the war.

I passed just north of St. Mihiel, and within a minute after the Archy began sighted an enemy plane ahead of me. I was coming in upon him from the rear, for I had decided it would be a brilliant idea to cross the lines half way to Verdun and catch the Boche from a quarter that might be unexpected. It had worked perfectly, though I couldn't understand why he had been so blind as to let the black bursts of shellfire around me pass unnoticed. But still he sat there with apparently no intention of trying to get away. I began to get nervous with the idea striking me that this was almost too much of a good thing. Was he really a Boche?

As this was in reality the first German machine I had ever seen in the air, and I had judged his status from the shape of his planes and fuselage. I thought perhaps I had better actually take a look at the markings before firing and see that he really had a black cross painted on his machine. So I dropped my finger from the trigger of my gun and dived a little closer. Yes! he was a Boche. But instead of having a black cross he wore a black "V" on his fuselage. It was a black "V" with white center. This must be something new, as no such markings had ever been reported at our headquarters. However, he was no friend of mine, and I would now proceed to down him. Why did he linger so complacently about my guns?

Suddenly I remembered the often repeated instructions of Major Lufbery about attacking enemy observation machines. "Always remember it may be a trap!" I hurriedly looked over my shoulder just in time. There, coming out of a cloud over my head, was a beautiful black Albatross fighting machine that had been hiding about waiting for me to walk into his trap. I gave one pull to my joystick and zoomed straight upwards on my tail without a second thought to my easy victim below me.

To my delight I found that I could not only outclimb my adversary, but I could outmaneuver him while doing so. I got above him within a few seconds and was again pressing my triggers to fire my first shots in the great war, when again it occurred to me that I had better look again and see that nobody else was sitting upstairs watching this little party with a view of joining in while my attention was diverted. I shot a sudden glance over my shoulder.

I want to get home. Instantly I forgot all about bringing down Boche aeroplanes and felt overwhelmed with one immense desire to get home as quickly as possible. Two aeroplanes from Germany were coming head on at me not five hundred yards away. How many more there were behind them I didn't wait to determine. I was convinced that my inexperience and stupidity had led me into a stupendous plot against my person and I was in for a race for my life.

On that homeward trip I experienced a great variety of feelings. I had been led to believe that German planes were not very good, and that we could fly away from them whenever we wanted to. As I looked back over my shoulder and ascertained that they were gaining upon me in spite of every maneuver that I tried I felt a queer sort of admiration for their misjudged flying ability, mingled with an unspeakable contempt for the judgment of my instructors who had claimed to know all about German aeroplanes. I climbed, dived, looped, stalled and stalled. They beat me at every maneuver and continued to overhail me. Just when I had begun to despair of ever seeing my learned instructors again I ran into a cloud. Dumb! I realized I was in a position of advantage for the moment, so I improved it to the utmost. Half way in I reversed directions and began climbing heavenwards. After thirty minutes industriously occupied in throwing my pursuers off my trail I ventured out of concealment and gratefully made my way home. There on the field two of my dear old comrades were waiting for me to come in. What anxiety they would have suffered if they had known what I had just been through.

"Hello, Rick! Why the devil didn't you wait for us?" Doug Campbell inquired as I began to climb out of my machine. "We chased you all over France trying to catch up with you!" "Where did you go, Eddie, after we lost you in those clouds?" demanded Charley Chapman, looking at me intently as he leaned against my suspended leg. "I've been home almost half an hour!"

THE FAUROT'S PICTURES.

The story of a brave young girl's constancy under trying circumstances; of the splendid stimulus she gives to the man she loves, urging him on to finer achievement, helping him when he stumbles and falls, "The Home Town Girl," which had its first showing at the Faurot this afternoon, depicts a type delightful in itself and most consistently that of the bright American girl of today. Vivian Martin types the role admirably and plays it with both intelligence and feeling, yet without emotional exaggeration. Her support is good throughout, particularly in the minor roles of the old business men.

the program, which is for today only.

That haters of women have no place in society and that their pretensions are insincere, is adequately proved by Marguerite Clark in her splendid characterization of the role of Sylvia Weston, in her latest Paramount photoplay, "Three Men and a Girl," which will be shown at the Faurot next Sunday and Monday. In this picture, three men, respectively designated by Sylvia as the "big, middle-sized and little bear," flee to the country to escape the society of women. Then comes Sylvia, who frustrates her marriage to an old man by running away; and her introduction into society proves them to be shams as far as hating women is concerned. How could any man hate so delightful a girl as Sylvia

Weston, personated by Marguerite Clark? All fall in love with her, but she accepted only one of them, the "little bear" as she called him, and both are happy. Miss Clark is finely supported in this picture the story of which was written by Edward Childs Carpenter. Richard Barthelmess is the leading man. The Pathe News, Bray Cartoons and Paramount Pictographs are additional features of this program.

A motion picture in which there is something doing every minute after the first scene is flashed upon the screen, is "Something to Do," Bryant Washburn's latest stirring vehicle, which will be shown at the Faurot next Tuesday and Wednesday. This is a picture of the speedy variety and is as full of action as an egg is of meat.

Mr. Washburn has a role in this picture which affords him an opportunity to show that he can handle wide-awake characters with the same ease and skill with which he portrays the sleepy sort of boob in his previous productions. Donald Crisp, who made "Venus in the East" and other Washburn pictures, is responsible for "Something to Do" and he has put it across in a lively, snappy manner. Ann Little is the leading woman and heads an excellent cast of players including Robert Brower, Charles Gerard, Adele Farrington, Charles Ogle and James Mason.

This program will also contain the latest edition of the Pathe News and Mack Sennett's new comedy, "When Love is Blind."

Dorothy Dalton, one of the foremost of the Thomas H. Ince galaxy of brilliant stars, ranks high in the estimation of film fans all over the country. She is a player of genius whose remarkable versatility has evidenced itself in a series of roles as antipodal in conception, methods and execution as it is possible to conceive, but in each portrayal, light or heavy, tragic or humorous, her artistry never is at fault. In her recent success, "Quicksand," she had a role of unusual dramatic power, but in "Hard Boiled," coming to the Faurot next Thursday and Friday, in which she appears as a prima donna, who is stranded in a strange community, she will be seen in a characterization that will stamp her as a comedienne second to none in the silent drama.

"Smiling Bill" Parsons' newest comedy and other added features complete the program.

"The Finger of Justice"

This picture was taken when "Rev. Paul Smith" of the Central Methodist Church of San Francisco last spring stirred his state to its center by dynamic revelations of social infamy.

The tense and gripping drama of the call, in a body of more than four hundred women of the streets of San Francisco upon Rev. Paul Smith with the query:—

REALISTIC SCENES OF ACTUAL PLACES!
A RELENTLESS PICTURE OF REAL PEOPLE!
THE MOST GRIPPING OF ALL SUBJECTS!
A LIVE DRAMA OF A LIVE PROBLEM!

its prologue and consequences that the photoplay here heralded depicts, with its scenes and its people real, and with the Rev. Paul Smith himself, in person, and a Clean-Up League that arose at once to support him, its sponsors and circulators, believing that the photodrama may accomplish in other section throughout the country some of the good it did for San Francisco, and the State of California.

"TIS A CRUEL WORLD
FOR THIRSTY FOLKS
Webster gives the definition of cruelty as a barbarous deed, but we know one which is infinitely more definite, begging the pardon, of course, of that honorable gentleman.

Cruelty is that action on the part of movie producers which allows to be pictured in a 1918 model bar where real honest-to-goodness stuff with a kick in it is served. In these days of blistering, thirst-begging heat, it is downright agony for thousands of victims of prohibition to choose the moving picture theatre in lieu of the old hang-out, and then have brought before their very eyes a scene where John Barleycorn reigns unmolested.

I attended a local picture theatre yesterday where the comedy attraction had been filmed over in Pittsburgh or Milwaukee. Had the leading characters been Pauline Frederick or Nazimova they could not have produced a more emotional effect upon their spectators. A deep heart-felt sigh caused me to turn and look at the man in the next seat. Positive tears were coursing down his cheeks as he gazed longingly at the beloved beverage, while I am sure he was mentally deciding that after all he had something in common with the "Ancient Mariner" who cried "Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink."

SUBMIT MISSIVES TO STAR.
Dolores Cassinelli, star of "The Unknown Love," has a large collection of model amatory missives submitted to her by admirers, who regard her as a high authority after having read some of the epigrams from her "Inspiration and Ironies of Love," soon to be collected in book form.

SHOOTING WAS REALISTIC.
A severely burned shoulder was sustained by Thomas Holding, who is playing opposite Pauline Frederick in her newest picture, as a result of a gunflash. In the scene the actor is shot by Miss Frederick, the bullet tearing through his shirt—supposedly—and inflicting a wound. To get the requisite realistic effect, Milton Gardner, assistant director, placed a gun loaded with blank cartridges inside Mr. Holding's shirt, shooting outward. The cartridge exploded with a bright flash, and burned the actor severely.

SCENE FLATTERS BURLERSON.
The telephone episode in Rex Beach's "The Crimson Gardenia" is more than flattering to Burlinson. In this picture, a detached receiver enables the operator to overhear the plot.

NEW COMEDY ON SPIES.
A burlesque of the German spy film which the public suffered during the war is offered in a late comedy, which tells much in its title, "Impropaganda."

TAKING ORDERS NOW.
George Ade was inveighing bitterly at the Chicago Athletic club against the proposed bachelor tax. "By the way, George," said a broker, "I hear that Blanc eloped last month." "Yes," said the humorist. "So he did. With a rich widow." "How is he taking marriage?" asked the broker. Mr. Ade smiled. "According to directions," he answered.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

WOULD NOT BELIEVE HIS EYES.
Nate Salisbury of the Chicago "Post," has an entirely new version of "There ain't no such animal."

story, which he told to members of the American Press Humorists' association while the convention was being held in the Windy City.

The "hero" of this yarn was a wobbly individual who stopped to gaze into the window of a restaurant where some proud fisherman had placed on display a huge muskellunge nicely mounted on a board.

The man gazed at the trophy for some time, and then, as he turned to go, he put his whole soul into the expression:

"Well, the man who says he caught that fish is a dog gone liar."
—Youngstown Telegram.

HIS CHANCE CAME.
"What do you men know of women's work?" fiercely quoted the lady orator. "Is there a man here," she continued, folding her arms, "that has day after day got up in the morning gone quietly downstairs, made the fire, cooked his own breakfast, sewed the missing buttons on the children's clothes, cleaned the pots and kettles and swept the kitchen? If there is such a man in this audience, let him rise up. I should like to see him."

In the rear of the hall a mild-looking man in spectacles, in obedience to the summons, timidly arose. He was the husband of the eloquent speaker. He was the first chance he had ever had to assert himself.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

TEMPERING THE WIND OF COSTLY FABRICS TO THE SHORN DRESS BUDGET

Expensive Frocks for Home Dressmakers Far Removed from the Commonplace—Opportunity Never So Great as Now to Express One's Own Ideas of Style—Fairly Full Skirts Reach Instep, and Bodices Show Definite Waistline—Adapting Modes to Wearer's Individuality One Secret of Good Dressing—Colorful Touches That Give Needed High Light to Unimpressive Costumes—Flounces and Frills for Those Who Adore Them.

BY MAUDE HALL.
FROM the standpoint of comparison there is more to be desired in a simple frock that bespeaks one's own personality than in an expensive model that is ugly and characterless. Women who have studied the art of making their own clothes along with other economies forced upon them by changing conditions, concede this to be a pertinent fact.

Materials that accentuate the charm of personality and express individual ideas of beauty are found abundantly in the shops of this season. Once a woman has learned to use them successfully, she has discovered one of the big secrets of good dressing.

So lovely are some of the inexpensive cottons that it is possible to achieve frocks that rival the choicest of imported models by their use. Take, for instance, a foulard voile in blue with little rings of white closely intersecting one another like grapes in clusters over the surface. It is quite as effective as any of the satin foulards offered this season. The material is used in a summer design which has a skirt built up in flounces. There are four and in compliment to a very distinguished group of individuals, the model is called the Big Four skirt. Each flounce is hemmed with a band of dark blue taffeta, of which the sash girdle and underblouse also are made. The voile forms the overblouse and cuffs of the elbow sleeves. The neck of the waist is collarless, the underblouse having the neckline finished with a series of cord shirrings in round effect.

Dimity and dotted swiss are made up smartly into summer frocks and particularly charming is a white swiss with blue dots made with a tunic skirt and simple bodice with round neck. At the lower edge of the tunic is a deep band of imitation flit edging, stitched on without fullness. Finishing the neck is a ruffle of the same lace, accentuated with a bow of blue ribbon with plicated edges. There are frills and flounces aplenty for the woman who likes them this season and, like all other modes, they may be adapted to all figures and worn becomingly.

There is nothing more charming than a white cotton challis made with plain skirt and a soft blouse. For the vest silk jersey or tub satin may be employed and this usually is wide enough to emphasize the trimming on the front of the blouse. Braid is easily the most acceptable form of decoration for a challis blouse and in the model under consideration, it entirely covers the narrow collar and long revers that extend to the lower edge of the blouse.

There are many beautiful touches of color in the frocks for summer. They give the high lights that often are needed for a material or design that otherwise would be unimpressive. A dimity covered with circles of varying sizes is unusual because of the color scheme. The small circles are entirely in old rose, while the larger ones have one side shaded with black, with the other of rose. A dress of this dimity has the skirt made with a straight gathered tunic, accompanied by a surplice closing blouse. Trimming the blouse is a girdle and surplice collar of old rose organdy, the collar edged with little frills of self-color net. The net frills also finish the short sleeves.

All of the color touches, however, are not in brilliant tones. Sometimes a bit of black is needed to stabilize a gaudy design in organdy, crepe, voile or dimity. Take, for example, a white organdy with a cluster pattern in lavender and pink. The blouse is in kimono effect, with a very soft vest of linen. It has a square neck and the sleeves flare below the elbows. The distinguishing feature, however, is an applied front and back of black satin, with large armholes and deep open front.

The skirt is a two-piece model and falls to the ankle. In fact, most of the skirt, designed with a view to service during the early fall

Ohio School Pupils Will Get Grenades

COLUMBUS, O. (Special)—This was a hand grenade. It was one of 15,000,000 enemies of death and destruction destined to impress the answer of democracy upon the challenging tools of autocracy. The war ended before this particular grenade and its companions could accomplish their purpose.

Thirty thousand school children—probably more—will receive at the reconvening of school in the fall this souvenir of the war—a hand grenade converted into a savings bank. The mechanical devices for exploding the grenade and safeguarding the thrower are left intact. Only the TNT is removed. This had to be done to make room for the pennies and dimes school children will save therein for the purchase of War Savings Stamps. These grenade banks will be given to every pupil who sells $100 worth of War Savings Stamps between July 1 and the opening of school.

A Billion Bushels of Potatoes

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
THE American Potato association has set its mark at a billion bushels of potatoes a year. We ordinarily grow about three hundred millions and owing to imperfect methods of marketing, a large proportion of that amount goes to waste," says Mr. Frank Bauckes, V. P. American Steel & Wire company.

"We can never have too many potatoes if we learn how to use them and utilize by-products. In the first place we ought never to market anything but No. 1 and No. 2 potatoes carefully graded, free from blemishes; then we should utilize the culls by making them into stock food by dehydrating; and by making potato flour and by making farm fuel by extracting the alcohol.

"Probably twenty-five per cent of the potatoes we grow are wasted through careless handling and by improper storage. All farming should be run upon the same efficiency basis which has made manufacturing a success. It is not fair to make the consumer pay for the mistakes of the careless and ignorant. When farm practice is standardized, we can double our production and at the same time maintain our profit.

"For instance in the handling of potatoes, the old shaking, forking and shoveling process damages enough to change a profit into a loss. Potatoes should be graded by gravity, the No. 1 through a 1 1/2 inch screen on to a 1 1/2 inch screen for No. 2.

"All of these things will be done eventually, but in the meantime potatoes can be put in the silo. The government will send you a bulletin.

"Don't waste potatoes. Remember that the great middle class of people must eat and that we must all see to it that they are fed bountifully within their means. Potatoes properly handled will solve the problem."

Sunday In The Churches

I once met a scholar, says Bishop Whipple who told me that for years he had read every book that he could which assailed the religion of Jesus Christ, and he said he would be an infidel but for three things:

"First, I am a man. I am going somewhere. Tonight I am a day nearer the grave than I was last night. I have read all such books can tell me. They shed not one solitary ray upon the darkness. They shall not take away the only guide and leave me stone blind."

"Second, I had a mother. I saw her go down the dark valley where I am going, and she leaned upon an unseen arm as calmly as a child going to sleep on the breast of its mother. I know that this was not a dream."

"Third, I have three motherless daughters" (and he said it with tears in his eyes). "they have no protector but myself. I would rather kill them than to leave them in this sinful world if you blot out from it all the teachings of the Gospel."

METHODIST BISHOP ARRAIGNS CHURCH FOR AVOIDING DUTY

COLUMBUS, July 5.—On Americanization day at the great Methodist Centenary, a forceful address was made by Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Denver, Colo.

"It must be said to the reproach of the church," said Bishop McConnell, "that we have allowed great movement to spring up in the new day with very little attempt to make them either American or Christian."

"To take a single illustration, think of the spread of Socialism in this country. Personally, I am sympathetic to many phases of the doctrine of the socialists. Certainly I try to be in harmony with their fundamental aim of a larger emphasis on human right."

"But Socialism in this country has been almost a direct German importation. The regularly organized Socialists have not been willing to submit their doctrines to free discussion. The result has been that the church has looked upon Socialists as a hopelessly dangerous class and at the present day calls almost any kind of Socialist a Bolshevist. We have even heard wild talk about the only way to deal with radical Socialists being to shoot them."

"In England, on the other hand, the things that have been really worth while in Socialism have been gathered up into the platform of the British Labor party under the leadership of unselfish and Christian thinkers. England has put her mark on this doctrine to such an extent that it is being made to work under English forms. With us there is little attempt to understand it. Very little can be done in dealing with Socialism by invective or by threat. The movement has to be understood—the best part of it adopted and Americanized and Christianized."

MURDER OF FORMER AKRON WOMAN MAY BE CLEARED UP

Two Men Held for Grand Jury at Fremont-Widow Burned to Death

AKRON, July 5.—Mary D. Francisco, widow of Joe D. Francisco, late of 693 Harvard street, murdered a year ago, and for whose killing Joe Gougevaunt is now serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary, was fired from her home in Fremont the night of June 21. Her charred remains were found the next morning on the smoldering embers of a pyre in a woods outside the city.

Tony Ilardo, alias Tony Monofello, formerly of Akron, nephew of the dead woman's husband, was caught in Memphis, Tenn., two days later, and Sam Contillo was arrested at 561 Washington street, Akron, Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Al Hill on information furnished by Patrick J. McGuire, county detective of Fremont. Both prisoners are awaiting the action of the Sandusky county grand jury, charged with the murder of the woman.

According to McGuire a confession was obtained from Ilardo. It is said he stated that following the death of his uncle he succeeded him in the affections of the widow who was about the same age as Ilardo.

Two days before Ilardo's aunt was murdered he purchased a car. This was found after the murder according to McGuire, with spots resembling blood stains on it. In the car was a heavy wrench also covered with similar stains.

McGuire stated that circumstances tend to show that the woman was taken to the woods in the car, her skull crushed by blows from the wrench and her body placed on the pier of wood. Identification was made positive by a watch which the woman always wore. Two rings were also identified as belonging to her.

Authorities had information that the woman was seen in the car with Ilardo and Contillo. McGuire traced Ilardo to Memphis, and returning to Fremont traced Contillo to Cleveland where the trail turned to Cuyahoga Falls. At Cuyahoga Falls McGuire learned that a man giving his address at 561 Washington street, Akron, and whose description tallied with that of Contillo had purchased a car of a dealer there a few days ago and had been given a bill of sale. McGuire telephoned to Sheriff Hutchinson, who detailed Hill to make the arrest.

THE BURGLAR WAS OBLIGING.
The dark lantern flashed through the flat. Then came the gleams of a revolver.

"Hands up!" hissed the head of the family, "you're a burglar!" "Y-yes," gasped the intruder. "What have you stolen?" "Your wife's pug dog."

"H'm! Er—if that's all you may sneak out quietly."

"And your mother-in-law's parrot?"

"Really? Well here is some loose change."

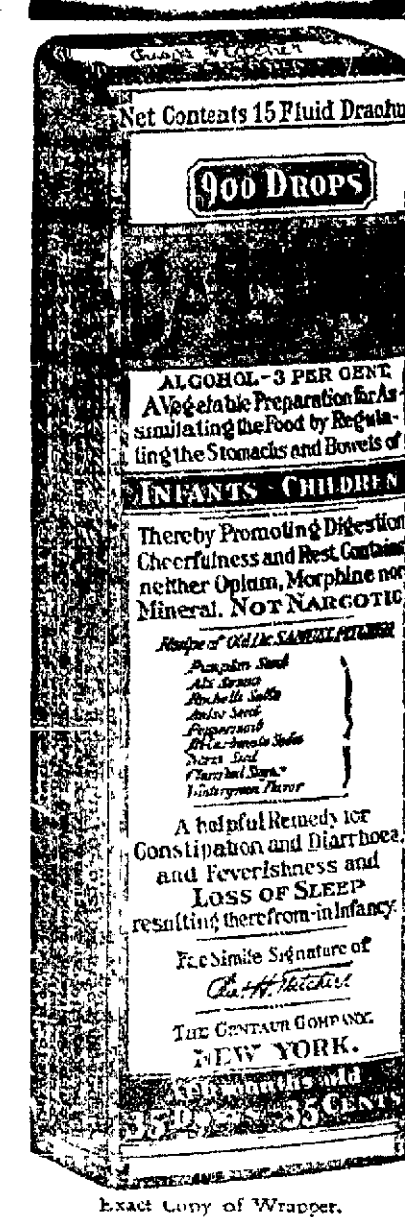

"And your daughter's gramophone?"

"Good! Here's some more loose change."

"Also your son's violin?"

"What?" Great Scott! man! I open a special bottle. There certainly will be some peace in the flat from now onward!—Exchange.

DELPHOS LADS ARE HELD FOR THEFTS

DELPHOS, July 5.—Chicks which the police have been following for a number of days have finally led to the solution of a number of thefts and small robberies which have taken place here recently.

One of the offenders, a 14-year-old boy, was arrested today. He was taken to the Delphos Jail, but his name was withheld from publication at the time with the hope of obtaining information which would lead to the arrest of others implicated. It developed later that his brother, Oscar, 14, was also involved.

The boys have been connected with a number of robberies in this city, lately. Some of these were withheld from publication at the time pending investigation.

The boys have confessed the stealing of three cases containing ninety dozen eggs from the Griffin Produce company, taking them from a loaded car which stood on the siding near the packing house. They admit also taking a horse and buggy which were hitched near St. John's church and using it to take a few eggs from the car to the Commercial Club rooms where they concealed them in large cases used by the Red Cross for storing purposes. The horse and buggy were then returned to the place from which they had been taken.

Eleven thousand dollars were collected in taxes at the Commercial Bank by Mr. Baenzler, assistant treasurer of Allen county, Thursday.

and Wednesday. This is considered a large amount for the summer collection, especially when the fact with the harvest is taken into consideration.

NO MORE FURLONGS.
WASHINGTON, July 5.—Secretary Daniels today informed Governor Allen of Kansas, that he would be unable to grant extended furloughs to seamen training at Great Lakes naval training station to allow them to help harvest the Kansas wheat crop.

Mr. Daniels announced today that 25,000 men were released from the navy during June and that 50,000 more would be sent to civil life before September 1.

OPION IS MENACED AN INCREASE OF PIUM ADDICTS

Consume More Than Any Other White Race
In the World

HABIT STILL CLINGS

Denies Closing of Saloons
Will Create Greater
Craving For Narcotics

COLUMBUS, July 5.—"We consume in the United States more opium per capita than is consumed in any other nation of the white race in the world," was the declaration of Congressman Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, at the principal meeting of prohibition day at the centenary exposition.

With the passing of the saloon as an economic factor in the life of the nation, a new responsibility rests upon individuals and organizations instrumental in bringing this about, in the opinion of Congressman Rainey, and that is striking at the drug appetite and habit.

Congressman Rainey is chairman of the treasury committee appointed by former Secretary McAdoo to investigate the use of narcotics in the United States. He, together with Governor General Harrison of the Philippine Islands, at that time a member of Congress, drew the Harrison narcotic act. At the opening of the war, Mr. Rainey drew the narcotic act which is now a law and which permits the use in the United States hospitals and by the Red Cross or narcotics seized. At that time there was two or three hundred thousand dollars' worth of opium on hand and no way of disposing of it. It is now in use in army hospitals.

War Increased Use.
"The number of drug addicts increases after great wars," said Congressman Rainey in his address. "Drug addiction in the United States was practically unknown prior to the Civil war, but the sufferings entailed by war, worry, and disease brought an increased consumption and the addicts thus created were responsible for other addicts. From 1860 until the present time the importation of narcotic drugs in this country has steadily increased."

"We are bringing now into the United States, through our ports $20,000,000 worth of opium and cocaine leaves, their salts and derivatives, every year, but there is an underground traffic which goes through the hands of dope peddlars and reaches the underworld, estimated as being equal in magnitude to the legitimate traffic."

"Under the Harrison act there are nearly 234,000 physicians, dealers, wholesalers and retail, registered. It is impossible to say how many dope peddlars there are in our cities. There are thousands of them who have regular routes and deliver morphine, cocaine and heroin to their customers as regularly as milk dealers deliver milk."

35 Grains Per Capita.
"The United States consumes 35 grains per capita per year. Austria consumes considerably less than one grain per capita per year. France consumes only three grains per capita. In the United States we consume legitimately 35 doses of opium per capita per year, as one grain constitutes an ordinary dose. We have vastly more narcotic addicts per thousand of population than any other nation of the white race in the world."

Mr. Rainey said that the opium habit is not brought here by immigrants from any part of Europe, and those Asiatics who have reached the United States and who are addicts, do not influence our population in this matter.

"The argument used by advocates of saloons that the destruction of the legalized liquor traffic will greatly increase in the United States the drug evil is absolutely without foundation," Mr. Rainey asserted. "Drug addiction and saloons have gone along together in absolute harmony. The great increase in the number of addicts in the last 25 years has occurred where saloons are the most numerous. Narcotics do not satisfy the appetite for alcohol, but illicit drug vendors have found it easier to develop customers where saloons have exercised their influence."

RAILWAY DEFICIT.
WASHINGTON.—Unofficial figures of the bureau of railway economics show an approximate deficit of $34,000,000 for the operation of railroads in May under government control.

ARMY WORMS APPEAR IN LOCAL OUTBREAKS

The army worm a caterpillar which completely destroys almost every kind of herbage in its path when abundant, has made its appearance in Ohio, the first reports coming to the Department of Entomology, Ohio Experiment Station, from Greenville, Ohio. Only local outbreaks have been reported.

Besides grains and grasses, the insects feed on beans, sugar beets, sweet potatoes, cucumbers, celery, sugar cane and many weeds. The caterpillars feed at night or during cloudy weather, but hide in the shade during the heat of the day.

Where the insects are particularly destructive or in local outbreaks farmers have controlled them with poisoned bait.

One bait successfully used is made by mixing twenty pounds of bran and one pound of Paris green; this mixture is then moistened with a solution of three and one-half gallons of water and two quarts of syrup to which has been added the juice and pulp of three lemons or oranges.

Spraying a strip 20 feet wide with arsenate of lead or Paris green around the area infested by the caterpillars will sometimes hold them but the poisoned bran bait is best. Sometimes furrows are made around infested areas with holes at frequent intervals where the caterpillars may be trapped.

FIND SCAB PREVALENT IN OHIO WHEATFIELDS

Recent hot weather and moisture conditions have favored the development of wheat scab, which has been found quite prevalent in Ohio wheat fields this year, according to the Department of Botany at the Ohio Experiment Station. The wheat scab is identified by the dead portions of heads with a pinkish fungus growing on the browned parts before the grain turns in color at harvest time. Shriveled kernels and blasted heads of wheat are frequently the effects of scab.

While the infection does not exceed 5 per cent in many localities, botanists point out that farmers will be well paid by selecting seed wheat free from the disease and separating shriveled kernels and treating the seed before sowing in the fall with the formalin treatment. The fungus attacks corn also, the disease showing in the form of corn root rot, and the disease may alternate between the corn and wheat plant.

FIND BEST CROPS BY COUNTY FARM TESTS

Tests carried on at the substations and county farms operated by the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster show that some soils require special varieties of farm grains to produce most economically. An example of this is shown in the fact that Turkey Red wheat has yielded quite poorly at the Ohio Experiment Station, but at the Paulding County Experiment Farm it has proven to be one of the best varieties for that section. Varieties of soybeans have given similar results when tried out experimentally.

Ohio now has thirteen county and district experiment farms besides the main Station at Wooster where many of the original crop investigations were started. These investigations were later extended to the outlying farms in order that the problems of local communities might be worked out.

WEED REGARDED AS PEST BENEFICIAL TO SOILS

Yellow trefoil or black medick has been found to be one of the more valuable weeds by the agronomists at the Ohio Experiment Station. The plant is a legume with trailing habits and flourishes on hilly ground or soil generally too poor to grow ordinary crops. This weed gathers nitrogen from the air and puts it in the soil so that better results are secured when crops are planted.

Many samples of the weed are received by the Ohio Experiment Station for identification. Some farmers fear that the plant may be a serious pest.

TO CHECK CELERY BLIGHT

Celery blight may be controlled by spraying the plants and beds with Bordeaux mixture and by destroying the diseased plants as much as possible.

Bordeaux mixture is made with four pounds of copper sulphate, four pounds of quicklime and 50 gallons of water. This material has been used with success by gardeners at the Ohio Experiment Station on young seedlings. For best results the leaves must be well covered with the spray.

Burning diseased plants and leaves aids in the control of celery blight. Trash or weeds left on the celery plots may harbor the disease over winter.

CENSORS DETECT MANY SPY WEBS

Labors of British Postal Men Will Make Startling Tales

LONDON.—The work of the postal censor which is shortly to be brought to a close, will make, when it is all related, one of the most interesting and romantic chapters of the war.

As many as 150,000 letters a day have been examined by a staff of nearly 4,000 men and women. Often when a letter or parcel has been apparently harmless the suspicions of the examiners have been aroused and chemical tests have revealed secret writing and X-rays have detected articles concealed in parcels.

A favorite method employed by Germans abroad to send food to those at home was to make up a roll containing rice, coffee, cocoa and so on and attach false ends to it to make it look like a parcel of newspapers. Others would fold their papers lay them flat together, cut large holes in the center and pack these hollow spaces with rubber and other articles.

Germans at home would send forth their propaganda under false colors. What appeared, for example, to be a school edition of Homer would contain pamphlets on British government in India. Similarly, magazine covers, dated 1912, would be used for conveying the literature of 1918.

The Germans were always putting forth their propaganda under false colors. What appeared, for example, to be a school edition of Homer would contain pamphlets on British government in India. Similarly, magazine covers, dated 1912, would be used for conveying the literature of 1918.

Some of the most curious things in the library are the cartoons which the Germans tried to send broadcast. One, when unity of command was established, represents the Gallic

Dirigible and Seaplane Welcoming Transport That Brought Back Commander of First Flying Machine to Cross Atlantic

America gave a whole-hearted reception to Lieutenant-Commander A. C. Read, captain and navigator of the NC-4, when he arrived in New York on board the transport Zeppelin. In the waiting crowds were navy officers and federal, state and city officials, but before Read and the other officers in charge of the NC fleet set foot on land they were welcomed by the best Uncle Sam has in aircraft. This photograph, taken as the Zeppelin was steaming up the bay to her Hoboken pier, shows part of the aerial fleet that greeted the fliers at sea and hovered over the transport until she reached her Hoboken pier.

Cock perched on the head of the British Lion; another, when America entered the war, depicts all the members of the Roosevelt family as Red Indians flourishing tomahawks.

In the museum are many curiosities which are addressed to the Kaiser—bare chicken bones and dry bread, a "scarecrow that is cursed," and an American cartoon marked, "If party is not there please forward to St. Helena."

While these and similar discoveries added a curious interest to the work of the department, information of a more valuable kind was constantly obtained by the expert commercial staff of the censor. Without this very vigilant censorship the trading-with-the-enemy laws could not have been enforced. In all the most important cases the prosecution relied largely upon its evidence. The censorship made it impossible for the enemy to communicate with his overseas markets, and innumerable letters from enemy sources indicated how much this factor contributed to the pressure of the blockade. Elaborate schemes by the enemy for being first in the markets of the world where the war was over were defeated by the fact that they were invariably discovered by the censor.

STATE HIGHWAY WORK

COLUMBUS, O., July 5.—State Highway Commissioner Coven has announced that contracts for the construction and maintenance of 85 miles of inter-county highways will be let on July 18. The estimated cost of construction is $1,976,617. This is the second big letting announced for July and he states that a third probably will be arranged for July 31.

Ohio School Pupils Will Get Grenades

COLUMBUS, O.—(Special.)—This was a hand grenade. It was one of 15,000,000 engines of death and destruction designed to impress the answer of democracy upon the challenging tools of autocracy. The war ended, before this particular grenade and its companions could accomplish their purpose.

Thirty thousand school children—probably more—will receive at the reopening of school in the fall this souvenir of the war—a hand grenade converted into a savings bank. The mechanical devices for exploding the grenade and safeguarding the thrower are left intact. Only the TNT is removed. This had to be done to make room for the pennies and dimes school children will save therein for the purchase of War Savings Stamps. These grenade banks will be given to every pupil who sells $100 worth of War Savings Stamps between July 1 and the opening of school.

Floored Seven Times in First Session of The Title Match; Challenger Shows all the Class

BAY VIEW PARK ARENA, Toledo, O., July 5.—(Special.)—Jack Dempsey is world's heavyweight champion.

It took this modern David just three rounds to usurp the title and dissipate all claims of Jess Willard, the contemporaneous Goliath at Bay View Park Arena yesterday afternoon before a crowd estimated at 50,000 persons.

Never before in the history of the heavyweight crown has a title holder accepted such concentrated punishment as Jack the giant killer meted out in those nine minutes of milling before the seconds of the champion tossed a towel into the ring. The accepted white flag of surrender is fistiana was raised shortly before time would have been called for the fourth round.

Willard Gameness is Unquestioned.

Whatever else may be said of Willard, his gameness can never be questioned. Fifty seconds after the bout started he was upset by one of Dempsey's left hooks, landed just as Dempsey had planned in his training work. Five times thereafter—six times in all—Willard was sent to the canvas, usually taking the full count in that first three minutes of milling.

The gong, signifying the end of the first period sounded while Willard was sitting on his haunches in a neutral corner, apparently helpless from the terrific pummeling he had received.

Dempsey Miled; Leaves Ring.

Instantly there was a wild cry of acclaim for the supposed victor from the crowd which, of course, could not hear the bell. Even in Dempsey's corner his handlers thought he had won and a way was opened for Jack through the press seats as he climbed off the ring, only to be called back by frenzied shouts.

Probably not one man in twenty then thought the falling champion could survive the second period. His ability to stand punishment, his great recuperative power, asserted itself in the one minute's rest and he faced the eager challenger with brave attempt at attack.

Dempsey Times Terrible Hooks. Dempsey, assured that the issue was settled, did not leap to the attack as some had fancied he would. He never gave any rest to the arm heavy and leg weary champion, but set himself and timed his terrific hooks delivered from either right or left to the Willard jaw.

Jess' blows had become tissue paper and Dempsey feared nothing. He apparently was trying for a knockout against the bruised, battered but game giant opposed to him. Willard took a world of punishment, but less than in the first round. There was no knockdown in this round.

Relentless Tiger Smothers Champ. If Dempsey rested any in the second round—and rest would be a misnomer for any part of a bout as fast as this one—he began the third in whitewash style. Three left hooks in succession to the champion's jaw showed how accurate was Jack's judgment of distance and how futile was Jess' defense—in fact Jess never showed any defense worth mentioning against this relentless bouncer.

Following these three hooks to the jaw Dempsey landed a few body punches. It was apparent he was not attempting to win with these blows, but to lower what was left of the champion's guard for a finishing blow to the jaw.

Suddenly those bronzed arms began to work like pistons with hooks alternating from left and right as Dempsey rocked Willard's head from side to side. Still the champion did not fall.

Championship Passes to Dempsey. As the bell again sounded denoting the end of the third round, Willard was a pitiable spectacle. His face was smeared with blood which had trickled down over his huge chest. His right eye, bruised and battered in the first round, was swollen shut while his left eye was rapidly joining the early closing movement.

A large lump showed on his left cheek bone. His power to strike an effective blow, even were his opponent less elusive, was gone.

As the spectators were wondering whether Willard would be able to weather another round, the towel was tossed into the ring and the championship passed to Dempsey.

Dempsey had answered the question of his class and ring generalship. In the opinion of a majority of those present Willard at his best could not have vanquished this fighting machine opposed to him.

Fought, Won as Planned. In looking at the battle in retrospect, Dempsey fought and won just as he had planned in his training work. The opposition was less formidable than even Dempsey and his handlers had anticipated. Willard, as said in advance, was in as good physical condition as a man of his years could be expected to be. His ability to survive that awful first round and come back for more proved that.

Willard's weakness came from his long semi-retirement, his lack of more frequent contests. He seemed slow even when it is considered that Dempsey is a whirlwind. Willard's first lead evidently imparted to Dempsey's additional confidence. It was the raucous left jab. It was short, because Jack stepped lightly away.

As Dempsey slipped under this defense for the first time to carry the attack close, just as he had planned to do, Willard's left side showed a red mark. This indicated the force of Dempsey's body blows, although they traveled only a matter of inches at the start.

Dempsey Hits Harder. After the first minute, as Willard's hopeless and almost helpless returns carried less and less force, Dempsey put more and more into his hooks, getting a better leverage, because he could absolutely discard burying his chin behind his shoulder and against his chest.

There were no "ifs" to this contest. What Dempsey's defense would have been had he been pressed was not answered. He did not bear a scratch as he left the arena. He vindicated the statement that his best defense was a tearing, ripping offense.

As the men stepped to the center of the ring for the preliminary handshake and pose for the camera, Jess was taller and heavier. The weights were not announced. Jess probably weighed around 240 pounds and Dempsey around 195. Even the discrepancy in weight and height did not carry dismay to those who had wagered on Dempsey.

His body, bronzed almost to Indian hue from his long training in the sun, suggested the acme of physical development; his muscles stood out, not in bulges, but in graceful lines. He was a thoroughbred, a 2-year-old, prepared for his derby test.

Willard in Happy Mood.

Willard, never drawn about the body and always with a tendency to weight around the girth, gave no indication from his physical appearance of the unhappy fate awaiting him. He waved his hand graciously to the crowd after entering the ring and smiled acknowledgments to friends during the preliminaries. It was not the smile of braggadocio or superciliousness, but the Willard smile of confidence and faith in his own ability.

Dempsey, gracious and good natured outside the ring, was serious, not nervously serious—but evidently intent to begin and impress with the task confronting him.

During those three rounds in which he was dealing sledge hammer blows to his opponent Dempsey's expression did not change except as occasionally his face set with the muscular exertion of an unusually heavy blow.

Willard's confident smile quickly changed to a silly, childish one as that first round attack suddenly disarranged all his plans of battle. He never had a chance to use his offensive tactics, whatever they are. It was defense, and desperate defense, hopeless defense almost at once.

Dempsey to Be Popular. So much for the tactics of the men and the battle which took from Willard the crown which he has worn for four years since he himself battered Jack Johnson out of the championship at Havana in 26 rounds, April 6, 1915, and gave it to Jack Dempsey, who, it allowed to follow his inclinations, will become one of our most popular champions.

Jack Dempsey is a fighter who, until this time, at any rate, has liked to fight. He refused no matches and cared not whom he met.

Although the cables have broached the possibility of a contest in this country on Labor Day or later in the fall with Georges Carpentier, the French champion.

Until the official count is completed, probably tomorrow, it will not be known what was the exact attendance or gate receipts. The seat sale for the last few days has been below expectations. This was due in part to the fear of many intending spectators that they could not secure hotel accommodations.

That fear was groundless. No one carried the banner last night, as private residences and emergency flops cared for all.

Crowds Slow in Arriving. The crowd was slow in arriving, and its transportation was handled without apparent difficulty, due to the fact that it streamed into the arena all day. The $10 seat patrons wishing to get their money's worth, came earliest for the preliminary bouts. The more aristocratic but none more enthusiastic ringsters disdained the early preliminary bouts and delayed until nearly time for the main clash.

In the final estimate the outer fringe boys had it on the ringside boys, for Dempsey was the popular favorite, and the smaller bettors were stringing it with the challenger.

The arrival of the New York and Chicago contingents this morning made Willard the ringside favorite at odds of 6 to 5 and 1 to 1, so far as any well established price could be established, with the wagering almost entirely between individuals. Big money has a habit of stringing with the favorite in a horse race and the champion in the prize ring.

Best Locations in Center.

While not all of the high priced seats were occupied and there were vacant patches all over the arena, the voids were in the outer fringe of cheaper seats facing the sun. The best locations to view the contest were the $30 and $10 sections, because they were slightly above the level of the ring, while the ringside patrons had to bend their necks upward.

Willard this morning said he regretted he had built the arena quite so large. Unable to gauge the crowd in advance, and encouraged by early requests for seats, Rickard preferred to take a chance of vacant seats rather than run the risk of criticism if the seats sold out and the inevitable ticket scalping followed.

Financial Harvest for Dempsey. As the result of this battle, Jack Dempsey steps forth as champion to reap the financial harvest which comes to all holders of the honor, the homage which mere man pays to physical superiority.

Jess Willard, with a fortune amassed from his past possession of the title, will return to his Lawrence, Kansas, farm and the five little Willards, to the life he has always preferred to the prize ring except for the money gained by his ring record.

After the battle Willard as ex-champion, announced that he was through for all time with pugilism.

Marks Wins All The Big Honors

Don Marks, of Akron, motorcycle race rider, of noted repute, and well known in this city, won first in all the principal events at the races held yesterday afternoon at the Lima Driving Park.

There was nothing out of the ordinary in any of the races.

2 KNOCKED OUT IN PRELIMINARY BOUTS, TOLEDO

Crowd Doesn't Notice it Waits for Title Event

TOLEDO, July 5.—It was just 11 o'clock when the gong clanged starting the first of the six bouts preliminary to the champion battle. Tommy Boyle, of Toledo, 116 pounds, and Sol Weinstein, Indianapolis, 114 pounds, opened the card with a six rounder Referee Rodkin calling it a draw.

In the second bout a long right swing by Wop English caught Whirlwind Wendt on the jaw. This bout lasted less than a minute. Wendt was out for five minutes.

Another Knockout.

In the third contest, Tommy Lewis of Toledo, knocked down Tommy Long with a right swing in the second round and had him bleeding profusely from the nose, but the bell came to Long's aid. The finish came in the next round when another right laid Long on the hot canvas. Danny Dunn, who refereed, slipped counting at seven, for there wasn't any use to toll off the seconds. Lewis weighed 133 pounds and Long 125.

Johnny Rose, of St. Paul was given the decision over Battling Bellane, of Brooklyn in the next preliminary. They are lightweights and both were strong at the end of the six rounds, the limit.

Malone is the Victor.

Jack Malone, of St. Paul hammered "Navy" Rostan, of Joliet for eight rounds. Rostan left the ring crimson hued. He was outclassed and never had a chance to win. Referee Bannan decided. His defensive work handicapped Malone and marred the bout. Rostan is game, for he took hundreds of punches on the face and body, and although cut up, was strong at the finish and could have gone farther if necessary. They weighed in at 145 pounds.

Bantams Show Clever.

Bantamweights entered the ring for the semi-windup. Frankie Mason, of Fort Wayne and Carl Tremaine, of Detroit were the battlers. They gave a clever exhibition, traveling the eight round route at top speed in every round. When the referee gave the decision to Tremaine cries of rotten came from the fans. It looked as if the worst Mason should have received would have been a draw.

Back to Their Very First Love

Jack Barry and Amos Strunk are back with Connie. They came in a trade sending Bobby Roth and Maurice Shannon to the Boston Red Sox. No money entered into the trade, according to Harry Frazee, the Boston magnate.

Both Barry and Strunk were members of Connie Mack's famous baseball machine several years ago, and their return to the Philadelphia Athletics will be in the nature of a reconstruction, in part, of the combination which was considered one of the best in the history of the professional game.

The batting averages of the four players, according to the latest statistics, are as follows: Roth, .315; Shannon, .277; Strunk, .268, and Barry, .250.

CLAIM FEE IS EXCESSIVE.

Youngstown Near-Beer Dealers Protest $250 License Charge.

YOUNGSTOWN, July 5.—Near-beer dealers claimed as excessive a license of $250, passed by council last night.

They claim that with the end of hot weather the demand for soft drinks will decrease to such an extent that it will not be profitable even without the tax.

Other ordinances passed by the council imposes a license of $250 a year on coffee houses and one of $75 on billiard and pool rooms. Mayor A. W. Craver has not signified whether he will sign the ordinances.

PAT STOOD

Pat, just returned from the trenches with his head swathed in bandages, was the center of attraction. "How did you get wounded?" asked a proud admirer.

"Well," said Pat, "the dirty Boche wuz raisin' Ned wit' our tranches whin our brave captain shout 'Kape down, boys, and stand Pat.' Oi made."—Private C. C. Cook in Judge.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

ROUND ONE.

Willard opened the engagement by pumping his long left twice into Dempsey's face with force enough to make the latter blink. The challenger missed a swing and slipping into a clinch landed three body blows with his free left hand, carrying but little force. Willard held Dempsey easily in a clinch and partly turning him around used his rapier-like left again, once to the head and once to the body after the break.

Then Dempsey, as if he had secured the range, opened his heavy artillery and swung a jarring left to the jaw, followed by a right and left to the body. The almost superhuman power of the punches was immediately apparent. A partly silly, partly stupid expression overcame the champion's face and as he rocked on his heels his whole body quivered. He pulled himself together, as Dempsey crowded in again shot a left to the mouth and repeated to the eye. The blows did not even cause his youthful nemesis to hesitate, and dodging past the outstretched left as it snapped for the third time, he whipped over a right and left almost simultaneously, the blows landing flush on Willard's jaw and for the first time in his championship career Willard was dropped to the floor. He was up again at the count of six only to be sent in the canvas with another right as he rose slowly to his feet, and blood began to pour from his mouth.

He turned away from his opponent, who struck again twice with his right, Willard falling on his hands and knees. When he arose Dempsey crowded him into a corner and with a right and left to the face sent him to the floor again. As he arose a fusillade of body blows dropped him in a corner where he sat when the bell terminated the round and led Dempsey to believe that Willard had been counted out.

ROUND TWO

Dempsey started where he left off and Willard with a big cut under his eye appeared to be in a bad way. He maneuvered to snap a left to Dempsey's face and a puny right apparent to the chin. Dempsey replied with several body drives and Willard fell partly through the ropes.

When he regained his feet he stumbled into a clinch, but Dempsey easily tore loose and proceeded to batter him almost at will, the champion retaliating with but three feeble slaps to the face during the melee.

When Willard went to his corner he fell heavily into his chair and it was seen that his right eye was completely closed and that side of his face was swollen entirely out of shape, while Dempsey was unmarked.

ROUND THREE

The final session was simply a series of rapidfire swings which fell on Willard's face and body with pile driving power and left Willard completely helpless. He staggered about the ring and wobbled along the ropes utterly unable to defend himself.

Blood bubbled from his mouth with every gasp for breath, while the crowd about the ringside began to yell to Referee Percord to stop it. Just as the bell rang and Willard collapsed in his chair he spat out a tooth and it was seen that he was in bad condition.

As he sat lolling from side to side his chief second, Walter Monaghan, talked earnestly to him and when Willard nodded his head Monaghan walked over and spoke to Percord. The referee threw up his hands and hurried to Dempsey's corner. He gestulated in the uproar and finally pulled Dempsey toward the center of the ring before the new champion realized that Willard's seconds had thrown up the sponge.

As soon as he grasped the situation he started for Willard's corner and the late titleholder arose and stepped weakly to meet him. They shook hands and Willard muttered something in reply to Dempsey's remarks and the fight had passed into history.

Gloves Go To Salvation Army

Jack Dempsey, and his manager, Jack Kearns, have agreed to give the challenger's gloves to the Salvation Army. The gloves are to be auctioned off. As soon as this proposal was announced a nearby sportsman, who declined to permit his name being used, declared he would start the bid with $1,000. So the first bid for the pair of gloves to be labeled winner or loser was listed.

SLUGGEST STAGED HERE YESTERDAY

Many Hits And Nearly as Many Errors Made in the Contest

Bang! Zowie! It was a slugfest staged at the old Murphy street ball yard yesterday afternoon when the locals made the Chicago Keystone club bite the dust by the score of 11 to 7. Errors were made galore. The visitors had 7 mistakes credited to their account, while the Lima aggregation got by with four.

Callahan, who worked on the lab for the Keystone was the star performer of the visitors, in fact, he was the only performer they had. The majority of the team resembled a gang of small boys on a sand lot. This Callahan, besides twirling a very good game, succeeded in locating one of Pierce's benders for a triple.

Pierce of the Lima nine allowed the visitors seven safeties, while "Our Boys" cleaned eleven. Records of the home aggregation clouded a Callahan special and made a complete circuit, while the Chicago gardeners were chasing the peller. Malloy and Lyons tapped the horseshoe for a double, each, and Egan, O'Connor and Callahan whipped it for triples.

The Chicago aggregation will perform here again tomorrow. They are sending to the Windy City for some new men, and they are now hotter than ever after the scalps of the localities.

Stecher Flops The 'Strangler'

OMAHA, Neb., July 5.—Joe Stecher of Dodge, Neb., defeated Ed (Strangler) Lewis, of San Jose, Cal., in two straight falls in a wrestling match here yesterday.

Stecher won the first fall in one hour and forty-seven minutes and the second fall in 14 minutes.

He took each fall with a body scissors and wrist lock. Lewis was on the defensive throughout and was given little opportunity to employ his specialty, the head lock. The match was fairly fast and interesting throughout. Earl Geddeck, world's champion, refereed.

ACID EXPLOSION IS CAUSE OF $20,000 EXPRESS CO. FIRE

Two Employees in Building at Time Escape Without Hurts.

DISASTER AT 4 A. M.

Fire Gains Headway, Efforts of Dept. Are In-Vain

Fire, caused by the exploding of a tank of acid, shortly before 4 o'clock, this morning totally destroyed the building and contents of the branch office, American Railway Express company, just east of the Pennsylvania railroad station.

Two employees, Bernie Ewing and Ruben Puff, were in the building at the time of the explosion, but neither were hurt. They were unable to give any detail of the explosion. According to Ewing, they were sitting in the office, when without a warning of any kind the tank containing the acid let go. Both were thrown to the floor by the shock, but were able to get outside before the flames obtained any great headway.

Three departments answered the alarm, and two lines of hose were laid. However, the fire had such headway by this time efforts to save much of the contents proved futile. Damage amounted to approximately $20,000, attaches of the company, this morning stated.

The contents of the building were composed of recent shipments consigned to business houses and citizens. There were several automobile tires consumed in the blaze, and several bundles of very valuable merchandise. Attaches have not yet succeeded in checking up to ascertain to whom all the articles were consigned.

Practically every thing in the building was destroyed. Most of it by the fire, and the remainder by water.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED
ALLIANCE, O., July 5.—Adolph Miller, 20, died today in the city hospital of injuries received June 22, when the motorcycle he was riding struck sand and skidded, hurling him to the ground.

Sunday Dancing Will Continue

Sunday dancing will continue at McBeth park just so long as the affairs are conducted in an orderly manner, and no residents of that community have any logical complaints, county officials today stated, when questioned as to whether or not there is any authenticity in the rumor that dancing on Sunday at the park must cease.

Sheriff Baxter stated he has not received any complaints from citizens residing in that vicinity, and as far as he knows the affairs have been conducted orderly. However, the sheriff said, if any complaints are received, or affidavits are filed, he will make arrests.

Legal authorities are uncertain as to whether or not there is any law forbidding the amusement on Sunday.

NOTHING EQUAL TO NERV-WORTH IN HOT WEATHER

It Gives Restful Sleep, Aids Digestion, Steadies the Nerves... Builds Up Strength.

A tonic that does this when mid-summer heat lays its heavy burden upon humanity is worth its weight in gold. That Nerv-Worth lifts these burdens is proven by a mass of signed statements still on file.

If the reader is skeptical he can verify Nerv-Worth's claims without running a cent of risk. The Nerv-Worth dealer will refund his dollar if the benefits mentioned do not follow a trial according to directions.

This offer goes in every single Nerv-Worth advertisement. Could anything more fully prove the faith in Nerv-Worth which its makers possess?

Nerv-Worth is a family tonic which does good and good only. Composed of vegetable ingredients it confers rich benefits upon the system and leaves not a trace of harm behind. It is truly a family tonic, blessing equally the nervous child, the worn-out veteran and men and women of all ages.

Butler's Drug Stores sell Nerv-Worth in Lima at Main and Kibby; The Central at Main and High and Everybody's, Main and Vine.

Motor Speeder is Assessed $10 Fine

After pleading guilty to a charge of speeding when arraigned in police court this morning, Alfred Thomas was given a fine of $10. It is also alleged that he was riding his motorcycle with the cut out open.

EIGHT PERSONS IN NARROW ESCAPE AS AUTOS COLLIDE

Eight persons narrowly escaped fatal injuries when a five passenger touring car driven by Henry Robinson, 1120 East Elm street crashed into another car on the Allentown road, about five o'clock Friday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson with several friends were driving east into Lima, and the other car was going south when they collided. Just at the end of the pavement on the Allentown road.

Mrs. Robinson was the most seriously injured of any of the passengers being thrown from the back seat by the force of the impact, to the pavement. She sustained two bad cuts about the head, and her dress was torn almost to shreds. Mr. Robinson and the other members of the party escaped with minor cuts and bruises. The occupants of the larger car, whose names are unknown were able to proceed on their journey after a short time.

The Williams and Davis ambulance was called and removed Mr. and Mrs. Robinson to their home, and took the young ladies who were their guests to the city hospital, as one of the girls had to have several stitches taken in a cut. All of them will recover.

BUSINESS BETTER WITH DRY TOWN LATEST VERDICT

Farmers of the county are exceedingly busy just now, and as a consequence merchant members of the Lima Suburban Day Trade Association are not looking for any record-breaking crowds; yet the business done has shown a constant increase. Wednesday trading has been good usually from all the districts reached by the Interurban lines. This is explained by the opportunity offered the rural resident to come to town at small cost and without having to harness up his horses, or put his machine in shape for the trip. These trips to town are usually somewhat hurried, to buy certain things he has seen announced at special prices for the day, in the daily newspaper. Close observers of the trend of trade by reason of the Suburban Day offerings say that the elimination of the eighty odd saloons is already showing a beneficial effect on sales.

In former times, the country resident, youth and parent alike, whether he was a drinking man or not, found, like his city cousin, the frequent necessity of having a drink forced upon him by men in town with whom he had business; and these dalliances with the flowing bowl always burnt up time most shamefully. And more often than not the intercourse over the shiny bar top and the inevitable and comfortable "foot rail" cost him a pretty penny in cash, which now goes into legitimate trade channels.

Nine Bodies Are Found After a Steamer Sinks

MADISON, S. D., July 5.—Nine bodies were recovered today from the wreck of the pleasure boat Reliance which sunk in Lake Madison last night after striking a stump. It was estimated that 32 persons were aboard the boat when the accident occurred. Reports say seven bodies are still in the water.

Early today the lake in the vicinity of the spot where the boat foundered, was being dragged and it is expected that more bodies will be recovered before noon.

Sixteen of the passengers succeeded in reaching shore.

The passengers aboard the boat were residents of towns and villages near here who had come to the lake for the Fourth of July celebration.

Will be pleased to book your orders for your winter requirements for either hard or soft coal, specialize on highest quality. If you order now for early delivery, you will have no regrets.

5 KILLED IN OHIO ACCIDENTS THRU PLANE AND AUTO

Five were killed and twenty-one injured in Ohio accidents yesterday.

An airplane figured in one of the accidents. Lieut. Roy B. Gardner of Mansfield started for Ashland and when his plane had ascended 150 feet the engine stopped and the plane fell upside down, injuring Lieut. Gardner and his mechanic.

Automobiles figured largely in the accidents. One was struck by a train and another, containing a party en route to the Toledo fight, overturned on a sharp curve.

One man was burned fighting a fire in Port Clinton. The blaze was caused by a firecracker thrown on the roof of a home.

MANSFIELD, July 5.—Five persons were killed, another so seriously injured that she is expected to die and two others were injured when the automobile in which they were going to a Bible students' meeting and picnic, were struck by a special train on the Pennsylvania railroad at the East 4th street crossing Friday.

The dead are: Rev. H. A. Haddington, 38, Pittsburgh; Mrs. A. B. Fogleson, 26, Cleveland; Miss Alice Jones, 14, Cleveland; Richard Otto, 23, Cleveland; Martin Myers, 55, Mansfield.

The injured are: Miss Agnes A. Weiland, 34, Pittsburgh hip broken and bruised; serious. Miss E. E. Michay, 28, Pittsburgh arm broken and bruised. Miss Lillian Myers, 22, Mansfield, bruised and shocked.

Bible students of Mansfield and vicinity annually hold a picnic and religious service at the Yanketown school house, three miles east of the city. Martin Myers, Mansfield, leader, was taking a party of visitors to the school house in his automobile.

George Bassett, gateman at the 4th street crossing did not get the signal from the next station of the approach of the special train. It is reported.

Rev. Mr. Haddington, Mrs. Fogleson, Miss Jones and Richard Otto, were instantly killed. Martin Myers died in the hospital an hour later.

Miss E. E. Michay, who escaped with slight injuries, saw the train coming and jumped from the machine before it was struck.

SANDISKY, July 5.—Ten persons were injured, none seriously, when automobiles owned and driven by H. N. Barrett, of Bay Bridge, and Ray Folk, of Norwalk collided on the Cleveland-Sandusky road, near Huron.

Fred Bishop, Norwalk, a soldier just home from France, had a wound he received in action opened up and had to be taken to a hospital.

Mr. Barrett, Mrs. Barrett, their two children and Mrs. Mary Nugent, Mrs. Barrett's mother, all of Bay Bridge, occupants of the Barrett car, and Mr. Folk, Fay Burrows, James Craig and Edwin Welch, who with Mr. Bishop, were in the Folk car, were cut or bruised.

Dr. Roush is Not Guilty

No cause for action was the verdict returned by the jury hearing the case of Jacob E. Bice against Dr. William Roush, in which Bice avers his physician has been guilty of negligence. Bice sued for $10,000. He avers that owing to medical negligence on the part of Dr. Roush, he Bice, is permanently crippled.

GREATEST SHOWS ON EARTH COMING TO LIMA ON JULY 26TH

One of the most important changes made in circuses is the combination of Ringling Brothers' world's greatest show and Barnum & Bailey's greatest show on earth. And a more important announcement is that the combined circuses will visit this city. Naturally but a limited area of this country can be covered by the organization in its present form, and the routing agents have selected this city as one of the favored spots for the appearance of the world's first and only super-circus. The date here is Saturday, July 26.

All of the features with the world's two most famous shows have been retained for the monster combination together with several innovations new to America. For instance appearing simultaneously are May Wirtz, the world's greatest lady bareback rider, the only woman accomplishing somersaults on the back of a galloping horse; the famous Hanneford family including "Poodles" Hanneford, the sensational comedian of the ring and the Davenport society equestriennes who have been the principal stars with majority of circuses in the past.

Bird Allman, "queen of the air," whose wire act has pleased because of its daintiness and attractiveness; Hillary Long, who skates in mid-air on his head; the Australian axmen and the Klarkonians, the Siegrist-Silbon troupe and the Neapolitans, three of the most daring flying trapeze artists now before the public, and Mlle. Lelzel, the world's greatest aerialist, are but a few of the thousand wonders that form the gigantic program. Trained bears, penguins, geese, dogs, cats and horses, statue equines, and the quarter million pound elephant act in which the five largest herds of performing pachyderms are introduced, are other features of this remarkable combination.

In the menagerie where families of animals were heretofore shown, now entire herds are on exhibition, together with eight giraffes, the only herd of its kind in America. The augmented zoo is one of the big features of the combined circus this season.

Of course there will be a street parade circus day. This is declared to be the largest ever shown by any circus and contains a number of innovations and novelties.

SMITH FILES ANSWER

According to his answer and cross petition to his wife's suit for divorce, Oscar L. Smith, 651 South Main Street, was given a very cold reception by Mrs. Smith when he returned from the army recently.

Mrs. Smith entered suit for divorce on March 5, on the grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty, alleging he lavishes money on other women, and she was forced to seek aid from the Red Cross.

MRS. LANNING DIES

Mrs. Elizabeth Anne Lanning, 70 years of age, wife of Samuel Lanning, died at City hospital Friday night, following a long illness from Bright's disease. Funeral services will be held at the Rockport M. E. church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment will be made in the adjoining cemetery.

LIMA'S NEW PICTURE HOUSE, THE 'REGENT' TO OPEN JULY 28TH

Thursday, August 28th is the date that has been selected for the opening of Lima's new picture playhouse, the 'Regent,' now in course of construction on Market street.

Modern in every respect and with a seating capacity in excess of 1,000, the Regent, will be a theatre second to none in this part of the country.

Announcement of the inaugural date was made this morning by W. S. Butterfield, of Battle Creek, Michigan, who motored to Lima from Toledo. Accompanying Mr. Butterfield were Edward Beatty, booking manager and Arthur Prudenfeld, general press representative.

"Nothing will be left undone to give Lima a beautiful spacious and comfortable theatre," said Mr. Butterfield. "We are utilizing centers along with numerous original innovations of our own. As for the quality of the entertainment, there need be no question. It will be the very highest grade the market affords."

The Regent will be under the active local management of F. J. Zanone, a capable and enterprising executive. Special stress will be laid upon the proper presentation of picture at the Regent. What is said to be the very finest picture screen ever developed will be used at the new theatre. This screen which was especially constructed for the Regent was on exhibition last week at St. Louis during the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of America and attracted unlimited attention.

Latest devices for cooling and ventilation will be installed. The "Regent" will be an important link in the great chain of 25 theatres of which Mr. Butterfield is president.

Brings Body of Woman He Killed To Police Station

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 5.—Harry S. New, of Glendale, Calif., walked into police headquarters early today, informed detectives that there was a dead woman in his automobile and he desired to give himself up as a murderer. He then led the officers to a car outside the station, where the body of Frieda J. Lesser, 21 years old, was found.

New, according to a statement of the police, said he had quarreled with the young woman at Topanga Canyon, several miles from the city, when she refused to marry him, and had shot her. She had a bullet hole through the head. New was charged with murder and held without bond.

LABOR BUREAU OPEN

According to word received here the federal labor bureau in Memorial hall will still be in operation, owing to the importance of the Lima work. Funds for the work will be given by the government. J. O. Moore, who has been assistant at the labor bureau, will be in charge. Miss Lillian Elliot will still remain in charge of the women's department.

"Stronger Than Ever"

Some people say figures make dry reading, but everyone will be interested in this, showing the steady growth of The Allen County Savings & Loan Company, in the Savings Building.

January 1st, 1912, the company's total assets amounted to $728,372.75.

January 1st, 1915, these figures had increased to $1,088,347.10.

January 1st, 1918, they had grown to $1,665,988.48.

July 1st, 1919, this prosperous company shows total assets of $2,034,683.60.

The officers and directors of this strong institution are gratified with the good will and confidence of the public and are pleased to know that fairness and courtesy has brought such magnificent results.

WILSON ADDRESSES SOLDIERS ABOARD SHIP ON JULY 4TH

ON BOARD THE U. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, July 4.—(By Wire- less to the Associated Press)—"This is the most tremendous Fourth of July ever imagined for we have opened its franchise to the whole world," said President Wilson in a stirring speech to soldiers and sailors massed on the deck of the presidential steamer this afternoon.

The men gave Mr. Wilson three cheers and as he appeared among them and began his address greeted them as "my fellow citizens." It was a striking picture with several thousand khaki clad doughboys and blue-jacketed sailors crowding the decks, life boats and riggings and with the president, bare headed and earnest, in their midst. His theme was "The New and Enlarged Meaning of the Fourth of July" and the war has borne America's message of liberty and independence to the remotest corners of the earth. He spoke of the future of America and said:

"You cannot earn a reputation like that and not live up to it."

DAYS OF DIZZINESS.

Come to Hundreds of Lima People. There are days of dizziness; Spells of headache, languor, backache; Sometimes rheumatic pains; Often urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney ills.

Endorsed in Lima by grateful friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Earle Young, 10 West Kibby street, says: "My kidneys were in bad shape. I had a dull, nagging ache in the small of my back and I was so lame it was all I could do to get out of bed. Sharp pains caught me in my back and felt like knife-stabs. After those spells of pain I became so dizzy I would nearly fall. I was bothered by dark spots before my eyes, too. I suffered like that for nearly two months, before a friend advised me to get Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought some at Butler's Drug Store, and I could see they were helping me from the first. After using three boxes of Doan's I felt like a different person. I was rid of the backache, the dizziness left me and my kidneys were in good shape."

CCC Centenary Celebration Columbus

(OHIO)

Described by William C. Freeman, Associated with Paul Block, Inc., New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston.

The people of Columbus are to be congratulated that among their number, there are so many wonderful young men and women who have given freely of their time and talents to making the GREAT PAGEANT shown in the Coliseum nightly a great success.

In my time I have seen a great many remarkable stage effects, but the magnificent colorings displayed during the Pageant show, and the natural acting of the participants, surpasses anything I have seen.

D. W. GRIFFITH, THAT GREAT MOTION PICTURE PRODUCER, shares this view with me, or rather, I share his view of it, because, unquestionably, he is a better judge than I, for he personally reviewed it.

Yet I like what I like and can see with two perfectly good eyes what I like.

I like this Great Pageant Show immensely, and so will you.

The people of Ohio, and of everywhere for that matter, are to be congratulated that there are always talented and unselfish volunteers among their number WILLING TO DO ANYTHING OR EVERYTHING TO PUT A GREAT CAUSE OVER THE TOP.

The local talent of Columbus, the capital of Ohio, IS GREAT.

It has produced a magnificent Pageant.

You must see the costumes and the stage color effects, which cost many thousands of dollars.

These alone are worth traveling a thousand miles to see. You will see at this CENTENARY CELEBRATION COLUMBUS what has been accomplished by the "young men and womenhood of America in educating and training the masses of people in other countries to whom have been denied the blessings we enjoy in such abundance."

You will see evidence of the development of character and industry and what can be done when FAITH AND HIGH RESOLVE set foot in the hearts and brains of human beings that there hopeless and helpless before they were touched by human kindness and sympathy, and assisted to self-respect.

WORK OF THIS KIND MADE THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION COLUMBUS POSSIBLE. For many a time it was an inspiration of God, carried out in magnificent detail by a group of men and women who are His devoted followers.

Otherwise, I don't believe any group of human minds-brilliant though they may be in imagination and in other ways-could have planned such a helpful, inspiring and thrilling exposition. I want you to feel as I do about this CENTENARY CELEBRATION COLUMBUS.

When you see it, as I hope you will, you will get its lesson deep into your mind and heart, as I have.

The more I see of it, the more I want to see.

When you enter the State Fair Grounds, Columbus—one of the best spots in the great State of Ohio—you will be immediately impressed with the crowds and music and the laughter and the happiness of everybody. You will get all day long, and until late in the evening, a combination of heart-throbs and joys such as you have never experienced before.

When a celebration is capable of teaching a GREAT LESSON, besides contributing generously to one's pleasure and happiness and knowledge, I think it should be seen by every human being. Show by your presence that you are in accord with THE GREAT WORK being done by the splendid men and women who have staged this CENTENARY CELEBRATION COLUMBUS, so that you may see for yourselves how the $150,000,000 and more, generously contributed to the Methodists will be applied in rebuilding the world.

You may see everything all day long for an entrance fee of 50 cents—and the GREAT PAGEANT in the evening for an extra 50 cents.
